Oregon Zoo campers get a close-up look at an endangered western pond turtle before its release into the wild. The zoo's popular spring break camps return March 25-29, with programs available for children in kindergarten through fourth grade.

Nature Connect

Oregon Zoo offers spring break camps

Nothing says spring break specially if you're an Oregon like meeting a flock of flamingos and digging for bugs. Es-break camps return March 25-29, with programs for children in kindergarten through fourth grade.

"Nature Rangers camp is a great way for kids to stay active, continue learning over spring break, and make a strong connection with nature," said Jennifer Whitener, program supervisor.

Camp activities include crafts, songs, stories, snacks, animal visitors and in-depth tours of the zoo. Camp activities, specifically planned for the interests of each age group, will be focused on making connections between animals native to the Northwest and animals that live on the other side of the world.

"Our campers go on hikes, dig for bugs, observe birds and other wildlife in Washington Park, and they'll meet some very interesting animals here at the zoo," Whitener said. "They'll also learn how to look for signs of animals in nature and how to create backyard habitats for wildlife."

Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Children may attend one day, a few days or all five. For more information and to register for camp, call 503-220-2781 or visit oregonzoo.org.
