Safe from the Streets

Renovations are made to a new recovery facility for homeless men operated by the Portland Rescue Mission at 10336 N.E. Wygant St.

In the past year, 56 people died while living on the streets of Multnomah County, and 85 percent of those deaths were men. This tragic cycle can end in part because of renovations have been completed at The Harbor, Portland Rescue Mission's men's recovery facility at 10336 N.E. Wygant St.

"There are many aspects to homelessness, including addiction and brokenness, which can lead to a destructive lifestyle," said Eric Bauer, executive director of Portland Rescue Mission. "The Harbor is a place for men to deal with those core issues in a safe environment, while also learning the life skills necessary to venture back into society and succeed."

The Harbor, formerly known as Next Step, provides a 12-month residential recovery program with addictions recovery, spiritual renewal and life skills, including counseling, education and vocational training.

All services are free of cost to the residents thanks to the compassionate support from the public.

The program will feature the PassinArt Theater Company, which will take the audience through African-American history through the art of poetry and prose. The festivities will close with a make-your-own sundae social. All activities will be on the back lawn of the library; in case of rain the program will be moved to the library's auditorium.

Juneteenth stems from the abolition of slavery and the news of freedom reaching Texas in 1865.

A member of the U.S. military has been charged in the death of Jefferson High School graduate Ivanice "Ivy" Harris.

Nathaniel Cosby, 38, a Marine based in Japan, was arrested June 5 in Honolulu for second-degree murder. Harris was in Hawaii celebrating her 29th birthday with her friend and boyfriend.
