Two students from different universities and social classes fall in love in the film 'Tlatelolco, Verano del 68.'

Love, Terror in Summer of '68

The Portland Latin American Film Festival presents the Portland premiere of 'Tlatelolco, Verano del 68' with the film's director Carlos Bolado in attendance, on Saturday, Oct. 5 at 7 p.m. at northeast Portland's Hollywood Theater.

The drama is an across-the-tracks love story. A well-off girl and a working class boy, set against Mexico's Tiananmen: the 1968 student protests and strikes that climaxed in the Tlatelolco Square massacre of students by security forces. The number of deaths was covered up by Mexico's PRI ruling government, which hosted the Olympic Games 10 days later.

Guests will be greeted by live music from Joaquin Lopez and Edna Vazquez. A question and answer session with the director and dessert tasting by Cocina Cultura will follow the screening.

The first 100 guests will receive a complimentary Chipotle "Burrito Buck," good for one free burrito, burrito bowl, salad, or order of tacos, up to an $8 value.

All proceeds from this event will support the Portland Latin American Film Festival, which in 2014 will begin a monthly film series screening. Tickets are $15.
