

Business Venture a 'Food Cart that Could'

Lip Smackin' Kitchen offers best burgers and other favorites

If you are heading down North Vancouver toward your job, Emanuel Hospital or the I-405 freeway exchange, you'll drive or bike by a modest white, black, and red food cart at the intersection of Fremont Street that has a sign stenciled to the side reading Lisa's Lip Smackin' Kitchen.

Many lunch munch seekers flock to the 'little food cart that could' to take advantage of a great meal deal that doesn't slam your pocket book.

What comes out of this food cart are some of America's favorite foods done the right way; from their wood-smoked ribs, chicken, and pulled pork, to three-cheese macaroni, collard greens, red beans and rice, fresh cut French fries, potato salad, cole slaw and pasta salad.

But, what's clearly becoming Lip Smackin' claim to fame is their burgers. They offer a burger special to rival any other in town,

C. M. Harris welcomes customers to his Lisa's Lip Smackin' Kitchen at 3441 N. Vancouver Blvd.

a ¼ pound Angus beef burger, flame-broiled with all the fixings, Lay's chips, and a soft drink for only $5.

Founder and owners Lisa Stockwell and C.M. Harris pride themselves on offering fresh delicious food favorites at affordable prices.

"We wanted a place where folks could get a great meal for a decent price without having to go to a fast food franchise," Harris said.
