Teen View of Peninsula Park

Through the Years, Through Our Eyes

The premiere screening of a remarkable teen production, Peninsula Park, Through the Years, Through Our Eyes, takes place on Sunday, Dec. 29 at 2 p.m. at the Hollywood Theatre. Admission is free.

The documentary was created by local students in conjunction with this year's 100th anniversary celebration of the north Portland park and community center.

Students spent weeks interviewing Portland Parks and Recreation experts and filming video of the park with guidance from professional film makers and using cameras and sound equipment provided by the Hollywood Theater.

A canned food drive to benefit the Portland Police Bureau's Sunshine Division, as well as a coat drive for Trillium Family Services will be conducted in conjunction with the film's screening. Moviegoers will enjoy a panel discussion featuring the teen filmmakers, and light refreshments will be served.

Cult Classic 'Repo Man' Encore

The Northwest Film Center presents the classic cult comedy 'Repo Man,' Friday, Dec. 27 at 8:45 p.m. at the Portland Art Museum's Whitsell Auditorium. Emilio Estevez stars in one of his earliest roles as a modern apocalyptic teen up to his armpits in drugs, sex, and parental neglect. He soon finds a way out through an ace repo man who teaches him the ways of the car-repossessing trade.
