Dear Friends:

I am coming to you today on behalf of my brother, Mark Brock. He suffers from Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD). His lungs are failing and he is unable to do many things that most of us take for granted. Mark's doctors at University of Washington Medical Center have told us that his only option is a life-saving double lung transplant.

Which brings me to the purpose of this letter, not only is a transplant major surgery, it is also extremely expensive. Even with insurance, there are many expenses that are not covered and must be paid out of pocket. He will be on a life-time of anti-rejection medications. Mark will need to travel from Portland to Seattle and relocate for at least 3 months at the time of his transplant. This is where your help is desperately needed.

To help ease this financial burden, a fundraising campaign in Mark's honor has been established with HelpHOPELive, a nonprofit organization that has been assisting the transplant community for 30 years. All donations are tax-deductible, are held by HelpHOPELive in the Northwest Lung Transplant Fund, and are administered by them for transplant-related expenses only. So please consider making a donation today.

On behalf of Mark and our family, thank you for your kindness, generosity, support and prayers; Thank you, Kristina Booker, 503-281-6092

Dancers put the Body in Chaos

Phillip Adams BalletLab's Amplification deconstructs and reconstructs the site of impact with scientific fascination and a morbid fascination with the body in chaos.

White Bird Uncaged presents the acclaimed Australian dance company with shows Thursday through Saturday, Jan. 23-25 at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Hall on the Portland State University Campus. The performances are for mature audiences with nudity and potentially disturbing imagery. Tickets are $20 for students and seniors and $30 for adults.

Phillip Adams BalletLab has since become one of Australia's pre-eminent dance companies, collaborating with cross-disciplinary artists to create absorbing, experimental and often challenging works.

Super Bowl, New York style

NEW YORK (AP) - The Super Bowl practically comes with a guarantee of A-list star wattage: No matter where it's held, celebrities flock to the big game and the blow-out extravaganzas connected to it.

But its location this year at MetLife Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. - just outside of New York City - has raised the bar for over-the-top parties and events that one would only expect from the self-professed capital of the world.

"New York is hot and has always been hot, so the pressure is on. Energy will be pumping, wherever you may be," said Shape magazine Editor-in-Chief Tara Kraft, who is helping plan a $2,500-a-ticket event at New York's swanky Cipriani's, co-sponsored by Men's Fitness. It will feature Mary J. Blige, Marc Anthony and John Legend.

So far, it seems like the city has delivered on that promise. Jay Z will perform at DirecTV's Super Bowl Eve party; Drake is due to perform at another; the Foo Fighters are performing across from Bud Light's floating party on a cruise ship; the Kings of Leon and the Black Keys are set to rock out at two different events; GQ is planning an exclusive, invite-only party that's still under wraps but likely to attract plenty of boldface names; and Super Bowl staple parties sponsore-
