

QR code for Portland Observer
Online

The PO

Saving Lives

Free clinic expands
services to fight
health inequities
See Local News, page 3

Fitting College In

Student speaker no longer has to put her dreams on hold
See Metro, page 9

The Portland Observer 44

'City of Roses'

Volume XLIV
Number 23

www.portlandobserver.com
Wednesday • June 11, 2014

Established in 1970
Committed to Cultural Diversity 44 years of community service

PHOTO BY TROY WAYRYNEN/ASSOCIATED PRESS

Briannah Wilson, 21, (left) and her sister Brittanie Wilson, 19, embrace after students arrive at a shopping center parking lot in Wood Village after a shooting Tuesday at Reynolds High School.

Terror at Reynolds

Student dies in high school shooting

BY DONOVAN M. SMITH
THE PORTLAND OBSERVER

"Active shooter in Reynolds High School!" those were the first calls dispatched between Troutdale authorities early Tuesday morning.

Now, investigators and people across the country are asking "why" after a teenage shooter with a rifle canvassed the halls of Reynolds High School east of Portland, killing a student and wounding a teacher before he himself was killed.

The 8 a.m. shooting saw the nearly 2,800 student school go immediately into lockdown. More than 100 law enforcement officers, tactical teams, and medical staff rushed to the scene and helped all inside.

Students were patted down and had their backpacks detained before by authorities before boarding TriMet buses in waves to be directly transported to the Wood Village Fred Meyer at Northeast 223rd and Glisan Street to be re-united with their parents and guardians.

Counselors were made available by Multnomah County on-site for parents and students to deal with the immediate shock, anxiety, and grief.

As of midday Tuesday, police say they had tentatively identified the shooter and were still gathering evidence on the shooting and looking to piece together a timeline of the day.

A Reynolds gym teacher, Todd Rispler was the teacher injured by gunfire, grazed with a non-life threatening injury to his side, according to multiple sources.

Portland Mayor Charlie Hales offered

continued ▼ on page 5