Stories behind Oregon's Wine History

This summer, the Oregon History Museum shares the stories of the individuals and institutions who propelled Oregon wine onto the world stage in "Clink! A Taste of Oregon Wine."

In partnership with the Linfield College's Oregon Wine History

Archive and other industry partners, this original exhibition traces the history of Oregon wines from the earliest vineyards to legislative efforts to control alcohol during Prohibition to the resurgence of the wine industry in the 1960s and finally to what the future may bring for these thriving Oregon businesses.

Visitors to the exhibit can learn about the flourishing Oregon wine industry through artifacts, photos, works of art, and interactive experiences. View wine-related objects dating back to the 19th century, explore profiles of winemakers working in Oregon today, and use your senses to identify aromas typical to Pinot Noir.
