Warner Pacific College in southeast Portland embraces the diversity of its students and the richness of multiculturalism.

Welcome Weekend at Warner Pacific

Diversity embraced at growing institution

Warner Pacific College will see a record number of 250 new freshmen and transfer students at its southeast campus as it kicks off "Welcome Weekend," beginning Saturday, Aug. 23.

"We are excited that so many students selected Warner Pacific College for the next step in their educational journey," said Dale Seipp Jr., vice president for enrollment and marketing.

Welcome Weekend is a time of transition for all new students. They are leaving the comforts of home and stepping into a new and different world. The activities and informative sessions offered during this first official weekend are designed to engage students in new friendships, answer questions, alleviate anxiety, and build anticipation for their first class.

Students will also be introduced to the college's four core themes: Christ-centered, urban, diverse, and liberal-arts.

While Warner Pacific's new students come from all over the Portland-metro area and the Pacific Northwest as well as from across the country and world, they all become Knights on Saturday evening. During a time-honored tradition full of pageantry, Dr. Andrea Cook, president of Warner Pacific College, bestows the title of Knight on each and every new student.

Warner Pacific recognizes and embraces the diversity of its campus. During the weekend, students will learn more about the richness of multiculturalism, the connections made by joining a club, the encouragement from staff and faculty, the fullness of serving others, and the depth of our commitment to ensuring every Warner Pacific student flourishes.
