Misfits

deed felt myself awkward and ugly and a lonely misfit, like so many children, and must have connected to the hope that I too might possess hidden gifts.

But there is so much more here. This is a story of the power of outsiders. The three main children are staked at various points on the spectrum of outsiders -- the social misfit, the misunderstood genius, and the person whose capacity to blend in comes at the expense of his essential self, who then remains imprisoned in loneliness. This story profoundly illustrates the pressures most humans feel to conform to norms that squash the deep truths of their being, and how it is that outsiders make the best containers for the most challenging truths. Reflecting on my own experience of childhood and my current experience of adulthood as I watched this story gave me a balanced set of reasons to weep--at how this story must have resounded for me then and how it encourages me now. And that is reason enough to re-stage this inspiring bit of theater.

Peace Choir Welcomes All Voices

The Portland Peace Choir, a community choir that welcomes all voices, wants to expand its membership as it launches a new season.

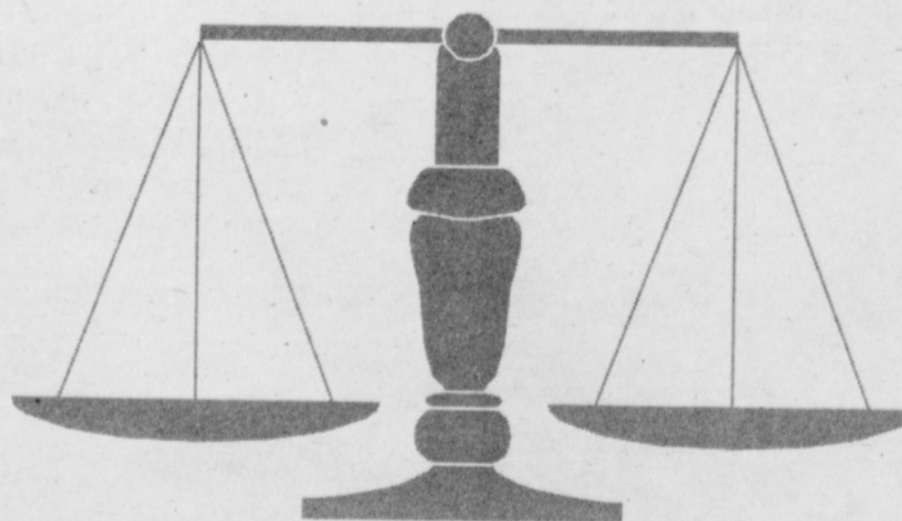

The choir meets on Wednesdays from 7-9 pm at St. David of Wales Episcopal Church, 2800 S.E. Harrison St. Rehearsals begin in September, but all are invited to visit on any Wednesday they choose.

There are no auditions necessary; all skill levels are welcome. Basses and tenors are especially needed.

For anyone who has ever wanted to sing secular songs of peace and joy in a no-pressure and accepting environment, the choir offers great fun in a supportive community.
