Hollywood Theater Tackles Race

On Monday, Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m., the Hollywood Theater in northeast Portland will feature a screening of Spike Lee's classic "Do the Right Thing," followed by a panel discussion about race issues.

The panelists will be David Walker of the Portland Black Film Festival and Seth Jordan a writer and comedian. The idea is to use the film and discussion to continue the many conversations prompted by the events in Ferguson and elsewhere,

The 1989 movie is being featured as part of the Hollywood Theater's screening series called "Black and White" bringing people together to watch movies and talk about race, featuring guest panelists from the worlds of film, art, and comedy.

Do the Right Thing is set on the hottest day of the year in the Bed-Stuy section of Brooklyn, everyone's hate and bigotry smolders and builds until it explodes into violence. Starring Danny Aiello, Ossie Davis, Ruby Dee, John Turturro, Giancarlo Esposito, and Samuel L. Jackson. Directed by Spike Lee.
