Winter Break Day Camps

The Oregon Zoo hosts day camps during the two weeks of winter break giving kids an opportunity to explore a rich diversity of habitats and animals.

Camp activities — intended for children in kindergarten through fourth grade — include games, songs, stories, snacks, animal visitors and in-depth tours of the zoo. Kids may attend one or more days, and there is a different theme for each day:

The zoo's professional camp staff has been helping children explore the wonders of wildlife through fun, hands-on learning since 1983.

For more information and to register for camp, visit oregonzoo.org/daycamps or call 503-220-2781.

Oregon Zoo campers get a close-up look at an endangered western pond turtle that has been prepared for release into the wild. The zoo's popular winter break camps offer programs for children in kindergarten through fourth grade.
