

2014 Year in Review

continued ▲ from page 7

Soulful Singer Farewell

Oct. 8 — Portland's very own legendary soul diva Linda Hornbuckle is remembered after her death at the age of 59. Hornbuckle was famous throughout the Pacific Northwest for her powerful voice and amazing stage presence. She was inducted into the Oregon Music Hall of Fame and was considered a critical artist to represent jazz and blues in the Northwest.

Portland State University Considers Armed Police Force

Oct. 22 — A deputized police force for Portland's major university is a proposal that draws fierce opposition from some Portland State University student groups, professors and civil rights activists, especially in the wake of the shooting of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Mo., as well as the history of police shootings in Portland.

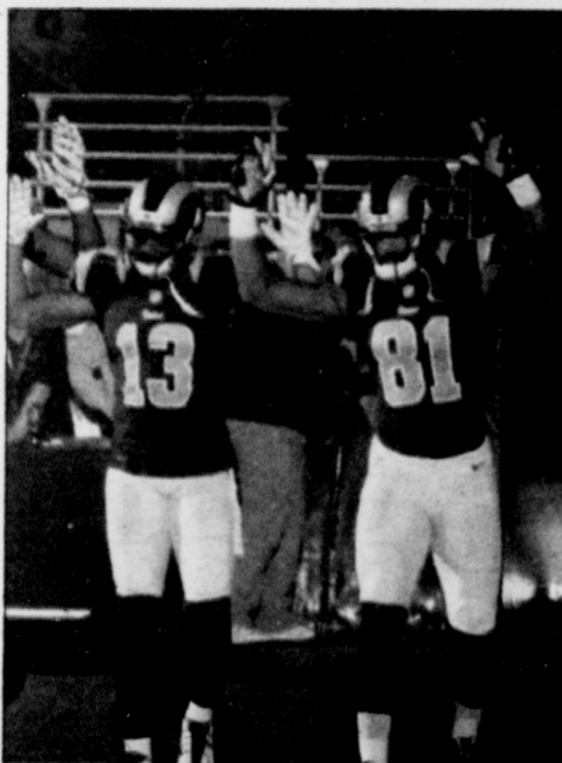

Inviting People In

Nov. 5 — Dr. Karin Edwards, the new president of Portland Community College's Cascade Campus, embraces an institution "without fences or gates" as it welcomes all students and integrates educational services for north and northeast Portland.

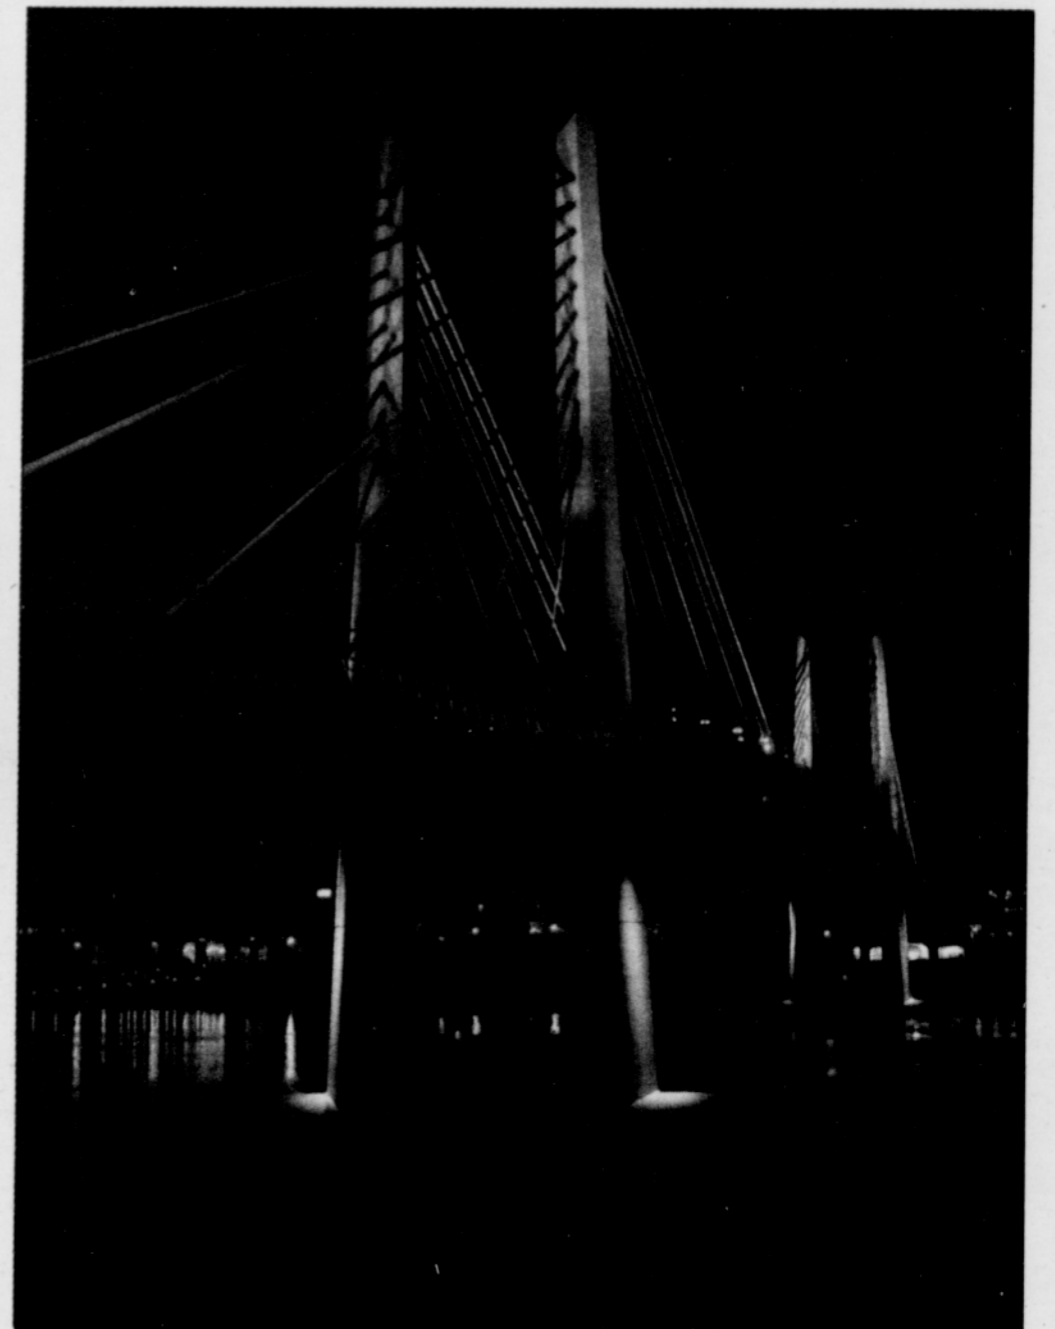

Uphill Battle Ahead

Nov. 19 — The new executive director of Home Forward faces multiple challenges as the housing authority for Portland and Multnomah County acts on behalf of vulnerable neighbors. Michael Buonocore is walking into a housing crisis where gentrification and homelessness is rampant.

Hands Up, Don't Shoot

Dec. 3 — Portland has become one of the leading cities to join in solidarity with protests over the justice system in the wake of the events in Ferguson, Mo. When national civil rights activist Jesse Jackson visited Portland, hundreds of activists lined the street near the Portland Justice Center, raising their arms and shouting "Hands up, don't shoot."

TriMet Celebrates Growth with a Justice Lens

Dec. 10 — Trivet celebrates its success to remove employment barriers and increase opportunities for people of color and women in the professional and construction fields. The $1.49 billion Portland-Milwaukie Light Rail Transit Project has created 12,800 jobs with 25 percent of the construction jobs held by people of color and 130 companies working on the project representing Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (DBE) firms.

Covered by the Portland Observer Proudly Presents

Salute to Greatness!

The 9th Annual Dr. King Major Benefit

Buffet Luncheon & Scholastic & Community Awards Ceremony

Saturday, January, 17th 2015, at Noon: The Legacy Emanuel Hospital Atrium
2801 North Gantenbein Street

Keynote Speaker: Michael "Chapple" Grice

Luncheon Tickets $35.00 Adult General Admission, available at the Church Office, call 503-282-9496

Combo Ticket Admission to both 1/17 Luncheon and the Elder Bernice A. King 2/15 event are available: $55.00

J.W. Matt Hennessee, Senior Pastor

Recovery after Shooting outside Rosemary Anderson

Dec. 17 — Community leaders and others reach out to students at Rosemary Anderson High School, an alternative school in north Portland, after a shooting outside the school wounded four teenagers. The supporters included three members of the Jackson family, African-American relatives of one of the teenagers injured in the gunfire.