Searching for Aztlan, a play rooted in the 50 year-old movement for dignity and labor rights for Latino immigrants.

Play Rooted in Fight for Dignity

The Milagro Theatre Group presents the world premiere of "Searching for Aztlán," a contemporary play that is rooted in the 50-year-old Chicano movement.

The play is written and directed by Lakin Valdez, a talented and critically-acclaimed theatre artist who has a direct connection to the earliest days of bringing dignity and labor rights to Latino immigrants.

Valdez is the son of the multifaceted artist Luis

Valdez, iconic founder of El Teatro Campesino and an integral partner of Cesar Chavez's organizing efforts and the United Farm Workers movement.

Searching for Aztlán runs through Saturday, Jan. 17 at Milagro Theatre, 525 S.E. Stark St. Tickets start is $24, and are available at 503-236-7253 or at milagro.org. Discounts are available for students, seniors, veterans, and groups of 15 or more.

Getting to Know Each Other

The three lion cubs born at the Oregon Zoo last September are now spending more time outdoors, keepers say. The zoo switched to its regular winter hours last week — 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with grounds remaining open until 5 p.m.
