

Arts & ENTERTAINMENT

Portland Community College's Wacipi ("They Dance") Powwow features dozens of drum groups and dancers from across the northwest region.

Powwow Benefits Native Students

Portland Community College's annual celebration of Native American culture and tradition is returning to the Sylvania Campus. More than 1,000 attendees are expected for the 16th annual Wacipi ("They Dance") traditional Powwow slated to run from noon to 9 p.m. on Saturday,

Jan. 17 in the southwest campus' Health and Technology Building.

Dozens of drum groups and dancers from across the region will participate in Native American crafts and food, activities for children, and raffle prizes. This event is free and open to the public. Parking is also free.

The grand entries (dancing and drumming) are at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. and the free community dinner gets underway at 5:30 p.m.

Proceeds from the event support scholarships to increase access and retention of Native American students at Portland Community College.

LAW
Steven Parker

A General Practice Civil Law Firm
Representing Individuals and Small Businesses

503.227.4466 | 1400 NW Management Bldg., Portland, Oregon 97201 | www.stevensparkerlaw.com

Advertise with diversity in
The Portland Observer
Call 503-288-0033