The Reed College Dance Department presents its annual Spring Dance Concert, featuring choreography by students, faculty and guest choreographers, in the Reed College's newly renovated Greenwood Performance Stage on Friday, May 8 and Saturday, May 9 at 7 pm.

Spring Dance Concert

The community is invited to Reed College's Spring Dance Concert, featuring the work of guest choreographers and members of Reed's Contemporary Performance Ensemble.

The annual event will also include seven dances choreographed and performed by the Reed Dance

Troupe, an entirely student-organized, extra-curricular dance ensemble; and choreography by Reed dance professors Carla Mann and Minh Tran in collaboration with their students, as well as music by Courtney Von Drehle of Three Leg Torso.

Performances are scheduled for

Friday, May 8 and Saturday, May 9 at 7 p.m. at the school's renovated Greenwood Performance Stage. Tickets are $3 for adults, $1 for seniors and non-Reed students with ID, and free for all Reed Community members with ID. For more information, visit reed.edu/dance/events.

Provocative Happy Hour

Educator, writer, organizer, and spoken word artist Walidah Imarisha will headline a happy hour series meant to spark provocative conversations about big ideas on Thursday, May 21 at 7 p.m. at the Alberta Rose Theater, 3000 N.E. Alberta St.

Imarisha, a Portland State University black studies professor, leads one of Oregon Humanities' most popular Conversation Project discussions, "Why Aren't There More Black People in Oregon? A Hidden History."

As part of the group's "Think & Drink," happy hour series, she will talk about the continuity and resistance in the history of Oregon's black communities, alternatives to incarceration, and science fiction and social change with Adam Davis, executive director of Oregon Humanities.

Minors are welcome when accompanied by a parent or guardian.
