Soul Singer on Come Back Tour

Grammy Award-winning soul singer and songwriter D'Angelo is coming to Portland on his "The Second Coming Tour."

D'Angelo recently released his first album in 10 years, Black Messiah, and fans are coming out of the woodwork to see the Southern-born vocalist who brought soul, funk, and jazz-fusion to Harlem's Apollo Theater so many years ago.

In a June interview with Rolling Stone, D'Angelo confirmed that he was working on more material for a new album, calling it a "companion piece to Black Messiah." He has already played sold-out dates in Stockholm, Amsterdam and Paris.

D'Angelo plays with his opening act, The Vanguard, this Sunday, Aug. 9, at McMenamin's Crystal Ballroom, downtown. Doors open at 7:30 p.m. with the show starting at 8:30 p.m. The show is 21+ only, with tickets starting at $59.95 in advance, $65 on the day of the show. Hollywood Library in northeast Portland.

Library Closes for Renovations

The Hollywood Library in northeast Portland will close starting Monday, Aug. 10, through Sunday, Aug. 30, for renovations.

The work includes replacing a worn carpet; repainting; adding a new information desk; a new table for children's iPads; and reconfiguring shelving, tables and computers.

Hollywood's book drop will be unavailable during the closure. Patrons can return materials to any other Multnomah County library.

"Hollywood Library is heavily used by its community," said library manager Bryan Fearn. "Last year alone, patrons walked through our doors more than 415,000 times. These updates will ensure that the library continues to be a bright, welcoming, safe and functional public space for years to come."
