Middle Eastern Art and the Search for Peace

An upcoming art exhibit will honor the search for peace in the Middle East and the overwhelming need for human dignity and civility to claim their rightful place there.

“Nostalgia” opens Friday, Oct. 2 at the North Bank Artists Gallery, 1005 Main St. in downtown Vancouver, with an artist’s reception from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. The event is free and open to the public.

“Nostalgia,” highlights the unity of those from the Middle East and celebrates their unique contributions to this vast global region. The exhibit tells the oft forgotten story of the beauty and peace that was once commonplace in the region. It offers a glimpse of a millennia-old Middle Eastern culture, rich in diversity of ideas. And it showcases the power of visual art to communicate... and change lives.

Works of art representing Middle East culture will be part of an upcoming exhibit in downtown Vancouver that will pay tribute to a search for human dignity and civility in the vast global region.

Triumphant Return to Stage

(AP) - Tracy Morgan made a triumphant return to the Emmy Awards on Sunday, telling TV’s biggest stars and power players that he had missed them after spending months recovering from a traumatic brain injury.

Morgan’s presentation of the night’s final award was one of the ceremony’s biggest moments and the culmination of months of rehabilitation and work by the comedian.

“Thank you so much,” Morgan told the crowd boisterously cheering his return. “I miss you guys so much.”

He referenced words from Jimmy Kimmel, who told last year’s audience that Morgan would return.

Morgan said, “Well, Jimmy, thanks to my amazing doctors, the support of my family and my beautiful new wife, I’m here. Standing on my own two feet.”

Morgan was seriously injured on June 7, 2014, when a Wal-Mart truck crashed into the limousine Morgan was riding in. The collision killed one of Morgan’s close friends.
