

Arts & ENTERTAINMENT

A demonstration on how to bake salmon in the tradition of the Native tribes of the Northwest. The activity is one of the many attractions returning to the annual Salmon Celebration coming Sunday, Sept. 27 at Westmoreland Park in southeast Portland. The festival also comes in conjunction with Sunday Parkways.

Portland Civil Rights Monument

Hello, I am the President and C.E.O. of the Rosa Parks Memorial Association of Portland. The organization is a 501c3 non-profit which is seeking to create a Civil Rights Fountain in Portland at the Downtown Waterfront Park.

Our dream is to honor Rosa Parks and all of our fellow citizens who each gave much courage and true heart to making Civil Rights a vital part of our City. Rosa Parks helped change the course of history, and we would like to do the same, in our small way, by creating a fountain in her likeness. The bronze fountain will be inscribed:

'Good Citizens are the Riches of the City'

Support Us Please

We in the African-American Community ask for your kind support in our efforts to bring about this Dream.

Celebrating Salmon in the City

Festival welcomes return of wild fish

The Crystal Springs Partnership, Portland Parks & Recreation and the Portland Bureau of Environmental Services invite all to a free Salmon Celebration to mark the restoration of Crystal Springs Creek in southeast Portland.

The Sunday, Sept. 27 event from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Westmoreland Park at Southeast McLaughlin and Bybee, will celebrate the significance of the work that has brought wild salmon back to the city.

Activities will include a Native American blessing, a salmon bake demonstration, games, crafts, and inter-tribal activities.

"I hope the re-establishment of salmon back into the center of our city gives kids and parents alike a renewed appreciation for the natural world around us," said Portland Parks Commissioner Amanda Fritz. "The Salmon Celebration will again be a wonderful time to come together and appreciate both nature and community."

The celebration also comes at the same time as a Portland Parkways event, a series of free community events opening the city's largest public space – its streets – for people to walk, bike and roll and discover active transportation.

The Tilikum Crossing/Sellwood Sunday Parkways links the new Tilikum Crossing bridge and three activity areas, Brooklyn School and Sellwood and Westmoreland parks.
