U.S. Soldiers deliver supplies in a marine landing on Iwo-Jima during World War II in 1945. The exhibit 'World War II: A world at War,' will be free to all Veterans on Veterans Day, Wednesday, Nov. 11.

World War Exhibit Free to Veterans

A remarkable exhibition presents the worldwide conflict through artifacts and manuscripts on loan from the Oregon Historical Society, downtown, will offer free admission to all veterans on Veterans Day, Wednesday Nov. 11, thanks to a generous sponsorship from Columbia Sportswear.

The society's museum and research library located at 1200 S.W. Park Ave. will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Veterans Day.

"World War II: A World at War, A State Transformed,"

The exhibit also focuses on Oregon, a state transformed during the mid 20th century, including the social impact of the Kaiser shipyards, the internment of Japanese Americans, and the only World War II casualties to occur in the continental U.S.—the result of a Japanese balloon bomb.
