Cooking and crafting classes return this summer to the King Portland Farmers Market which is held each Sunday at King School Park in northeast Portland.

King Market Summer School

Summer school is in session as the King Portland Farmers Market kicks off its annual series of on-site community classes on topics including cooking and fresh floral design featuring ingredients and flowers from market vendors.

Classes are suited to both seasoned market-goers and those new to the neighborhood market experience held each Sunday during summer and early fall. Shoppers are encouraged to register in advance at portlandfarmersmarket.org since spaces are limited. Classes take place monthly from June through September in the Martin Luther King Jr. School parking lot located at Northeast Seventh Avenue and Wygant Street.

Available classes include Floral Jewelry with Spring Blooms on Sunday, June 10; Fresh Salsa and Tortillas on Sunday, July 15; Purple Basil Pickled Pickles on Sunday, Aug. 12; and Bone Broth and Seasonal Soups on Sunday, Sept. 9.

Volunteers with the Clark County Repair Cafe help a participant repair her lamp.

Get Your Things Fixed for Free

A free community event where participants can bring broken or damaged common household items and have them fixed for free by skilled volunteers will take place Thursday, June 7 from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Vancouver Community Library, 901 C. St. in Vancouver.

The volunteers from the Clark County Repair Café have hosted seven events and fixed over 400 items since the start of 2017. They fix bicycles, small appliances, small electronics, jewelry, sharpen tools and knives and do sewing repairs.

Participants are encouraged to bring one small item per person. Some replacement parts might be available for a small fee. Wondering if your item can be fixed? You can ask by emailing the repair café at repair@columbiasprings.org or call 360-882-0936, extension 224. You can learn more at columbiasprings.org/repair.
