The new Virginia Garcia Memorial Health Center in Beaverton is the health provider's most racially and ethnically diverse clinic.

DIVERSE HEALTH CENTER OPENS

Preventive health care is the way of the future, and Virginia Garcia Memorial Health Center will celebrate the opening of its first Wellness Center in Beaverton with a ribbon cutting on Friday, Aug. 10 and a community care festival on Saturday, Aug. 11.

The Beaverton Wellness Center offers one-stop for kids, families and individuals needing medical, dental, pharmacy and mental/behavioral health services.

At 36,000 square feet, the center is three times the size of the former Beaverton Clinic located across the street and represents Virginia Garcia's most racially and ethnically diverse clinic in their 17-clinic system. The Beaverton patients represent more than 50 different languages.

The community will have a chance to tour the new clinic on Saturday from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m. Providers will be on hand to offer free vaccinations, dental sealants for kids 6-15 years of age or sports physicals for youth. The Lions Sight & Hearing Foundation will also be offering free hearing and vision screenings.

Spots are limited for free services so early attendance is encouraged. Tualatin Hills Parks & Recreation will help entertain the kids and there will be plenty of local multicultural music and entertainment all day long for the whole family.

Outlaw Defends Response

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3 videos on social media that purportedly show police's first use of a flash-bang grenade that day, each from different angles. One was posted by KATU-TV photojournalist Ric Peavyhouse and another by Twitter user danielvmedia.

Outlaw contended that the crowd-control measures were taken only after demonstrators fired their own projectiles, including an m-80 explosive.

Others who were present, including protestors and some journalists saw the opposite—flash-bang grenades thrown by police, followed by projectiles from protestors. There are two separate Relief that the protests didn't get any more violent, and didn't result in more serious injuries or fatalities, was a point lauded by Portland Mayor Ted Wheeler. He said police accomplished their goals of keeping opposing groups separated protecting lives. He added that Outlaw authorized an internal review of police tactics in response to the protestor's injuries.
