

The INSIDE

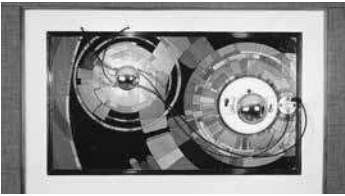

The Week in Review page 2

CALENDAR page 6

pages 7-11

Arts & ENTERTAINMENT

OPINION pages 8-9

CLASSIFIEDS pages 10

This page
Sponsored by: Fred Meyer
What's on your list today?®

PHOTO BY MOTOYA NAKAMURA/MULTNOMAH COUNTY

The new Gladys McCoy Health Department building in Old Town at 610 N.W. Sixth Ave. has opened to the public. A headquarters for 500 Multnomah County Health Department employees, the building is named after the late Multnomah County Chair Gladys McCoy, the first African American elected to public office in Oregon.

McCoy Building Opens

County public health workers move in

The new Gladys McCoy Health Department Headquarters across from Union Station in Old Town is now serving the community, a building named after the late Multnomah County Chair Gladys McCoy, the first African American elected to public office in Oregon. About 500 Health Department employees started to move

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6

School Founder Remembered

Advocate Rosemary Anderson dies at 88

Rosemary Anderson, former executive director of the Portland Opportunities Industrial Center and the founder and namesake of Rosemary Anderson High School, is being remembered for her advocacy for Portland youth after passing away March 15. She was 88 years old.

Anderson was long associated with serving under represented at-risk youth in and around the communities of Portland.

Born Nov. 20, 1930 in Denver, Colo., she moved to Portland in 1949 with her husband and children. She was employed by POIC from its inception in 1967, and in 1980 was appointed executive director. During her time at the organization's helm, she

Rosemary Anderson

CONTINUED ON PAGE 6