New Twist on Storybook Musical

You're invited to take a journey into the enchanted world of magic beans and moonlit nights with the familiar storybook figures Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, Jack with his beanstalk, Rapunzel and other characters when "Into the Woods" takes the stage at the Broadway Rose Theatre in Tigard. As the characters descend deeper into the forest, they find that getting what you wish for doesn't always end happily ever after. Stephen Sondheim's witty, powerful score and James Lapine's imaginative, darkly humorous book combine to make the Tony Award-winning "Into the Woods" a favorite among musical lovers and a timeless masterpiece. Broadway Rose's production is directed by Jessica Wallenfels who says "Into the Woods celebrates the familiar archetypes of fairy tales, while also asking profound questions about humankind, such as, is contentment possible? How does privilege blind us? Are good and evil absolute, or are they only multiple sides of the same story?" Ultimately the show explores how a community pulls together in the face of disaster. Preview performance is Thursday, May 30 with opening night on Friday, May 31, and performances continuing through June 30. Visit broadway-rose.org or call the box office at 503-620-5262.
