

Shout Outs to Jefferson

To New Friendships and Old Ones

A shout out to all the friends shown here, as we have made our friendships through our high school.

You Helped Me Find Myself

The most interesting thing from my Jefferson experience was finding myself. I always was a shy person but you, Mr. Lennie Edwards, my digital media teacher, cracked me out of my shell.

I made things I never thought I could. I learned things I never thought I could do. I liked that this class lightens you up and makes you realize you are smart and have potential. Even though you are a very blunt person, you mean the things you say and put confidence in people.

I also learned not to care about what other people think of me because it doesn't matter as long as you know you have it within yourself.

Looking Ahead and Finding Myself

Here in these uncertain and unpredicted times there is not much to do these days. Recently, I have been trying to start the next chapter of my life since the previous one ended so suddenly. I have been trying to find myself, eliminate toxic and unhealthy friendships, meet new people who I am about to cross paths with in three short months, and sleeping, of course!
