New Campaign: Slow Down

Slowing traffic down to save lives is the goal of a new traffic campaign called "Slow the Flock Down."

Portland drivers started seeing traffic signs reminding them to slow down as part of a new "Slow the Flock Down" traffic safety campaign that began this week.

The effort called Vision Zero emphasizes that it never ethically acceptable that people are killed or seriously injured when driving on the road. When crashes do occur, safe speeds make it less likely that people are killed or seriously injured. The slogan is a supposed to be a clever way to get people's attention and get them to drive slower.

Crashes have increased over the pandemic in Portland and the city is ramping up safety measures and awareness campaigns. As a result, drivers will now be seeing billboards, online messaging and bus stops with the "Slow the Flock Down" design. The design consists of a blue sign with several yellow birds.

Those looking to help spread awareness can pick up "Slow the Flock Down" yard signs from The Portland Building, downtown.
