

Long Road to Recovery After Being Left Paralyzed

Woman grieves the loss of her son and also dealing with her own prognosis

A Vancouver, Washington woman Aubree Young and her infant child Kymani were hospitalized after her 42 year old husband David E. Stansbury, Jr shot her and the baby before killing himself. Officers responded around 3:20 p.m. December 7th to the area of NW 152nd Street and NW 4th Place in the Salmon Creek neighborhood of Vancouver. Young told 911 operators her husband had just shot their infant child, shot her, and then shot himself.

Clark County Sheriff's Office deputies made their way into the home, finding three people on the ground with gunshot wounds. Stansbury was pronounced dead at the scene. Both the infant and the woman were taken to the hospital in critical condition. The baby later died in the hospital on Dec. 9 with his family by his side according to KGW8.

Now, her community is rallying to support young and her family during this unimaginable time. As Aubree Young, grieves the loss of her son, Kymani, she's also grappling with her own prognosis. There is a GoFundMe for the community to help in any way they can. Amy Ruth, childhood friend and Communications Director at New Heights Church who is the organizer of the fundraising page shared young has been left paralyzed in her legs. She also stated "I know that the bullet is lodged in her spine, and there's no plans to remove that."

They said it looks like she may have a few months left of treatments and recovery in the hospital. Home for now will be with her parents. They are working to make their current home wheelchair accessible with hopes to build an ADU for Aubree on their property. The bids they are receiving are in the ballpark of $270,000-$300,000.

"Some tragedies are beyond words and as much as we want to answer why, no amount of detail will satisfy the question," Ruth wrote. "The family asks that the public respect their privacy as they navigate the complicated grief ahead of them."

They said Aubree's overwhelmed by the love she's receiving and said it's made all the difference. Those who know her said it's Aubree's resilience and desire to find some good in this tragedy that's inspired them.
