Voters elected her to lead three times

(AP) Oregon Attorney General Ellen Rosenblum, a Democrat and the first woman to serve in the post, announced on Tuesday that she will not seek reelection after serving for three terms.

Rosenblum, 72, said she would step aside to allow "new leadership, new energy, and new initiatives" to come to the Oregon Department of Justice that she has headed since 2012.

"I deeply appreciate the faith Oregonians have placed in me these past eleven years," Rosenblum said in a statement. "At the same time, a job like this belongs to the people of Oregon — not to any one individual." Oregon Public Broadcasting reported earlier Tuesday that Rosenblum had quietly made it known that she won't be running in the primary and general election next year.

During her tenure, Rosenblum repeatedly signed onto lawsuits against then President Donald Trump's administration over federal policies impacting voting, abortion and immigration, OPB noted.

A former federal prosecutor and state trial and appellate judge, Rosenblum was first elected to a four-year term as Oregon's 17th Attorney General in 2012.

Designs with a Purpose

Innocent Designs located in Portland Oregon, was established in January 2020 by Vanessa James. Vanessa's passion for creating unique designs began over a decade ago while being a member of the cheerleading team at Benson Polytechnic High School in Portland, Oregon. Whenever the team needed apparel designed, Vanessa was the girl for the job. After graduation she continued her education in Graphic Design at Jackson State University. Returning home, she studied Web Design at Portland Community College.

The mission of Innocent Designs is to step outside the box, spark conversation, and provide laughter all with a unique touch. They currently offer t-shirts, sweaters, onesies, wall art, stickers, key chains, button packs, and journals. While the company currently does not have a brick-and mortar, their website www.innocentdesigns.com is open 24/7 and they ship orders 5 days a week.

"With a purpose" is the company slogan and they strive to give back to their community.
