

Wm. Gadsby THE HOUSEFURNISHER

Gadsby Block, cor. Washington and First Sts.

How to Be Happy, Even Though You Are Married

Furnish your home, surround your wife and children with something more than the bare necessities of existence.

SOME PRICES ON STAPLE FURNITURE WHICH MAY INTEREST YOU

PARLOR GOODS

Parlor suite, frames solid mahogany, 3 pieces, $25. Parlor suite, frames birch, 3 pieces, $17.50.

BEDROOM FURNITURE

Hotel suite, consisting of bed 6 feet high, combination bureau and commode, with mirror, $12.50.

DINING-ROOM FURNITURE

Dining-room suit, in oak, 6 chairs, 1 sideboard, 1 pillar-extension table, $30.

This elegant Arm Rocker, made of golden quarter-sawn oak, piano polish. $4.00

NOTE OUR EASY TERMS

$ 20.00 worth of goods $ 5.00 down . . . $1.00 week or $ 5.00 month $ 40.00 worth of goods $10.00 down . . . $1.00 week or $ 5.00 month $ 60.00 worth of goods $15.00 down . . . $1.50 week or $ 6.00 month $100.00 worth of goods $25.00 down . . . $2.50 week or $10.00 month

We do not sell goods on the installment plan outside of the neighborhood. Parties in the country can save money by writing for our new catalogue for 1900.

WM. GADSBY THE HOUSEFURNISHER Washington and First Sts.

GEORGIE'S BABY SISTER HAS THE COLIC

"Paw" Gets Into a Fearful Lot of Trouble Because He is Opposed to Clever Trained Nurse Graduates.

The Baby's Got the Colic. I bet you it would be a great hit if sum collidge had it to help him for the foot ball team.

and the first thing paw saw the Docketer was holdin his arms fast to his sides and tryin to push him into a closet where they wanted to lock him up.

Change of Diet Necessary. "You must stop givin it that kind of food rite away. When my little Florence was borned she had the same kind of trouble."

relief. Then, when he saw that the doctor intended to say nothing more, he asked, with some hesitation, "Er—ah—boy or girl?"

OREGON'S CITIZEN SOLDIERY

AFTER furnishing for service in the Philippines one of the finest regiments that ever fought under the Stars and Stripes, the Oregon National Guard remains a fine body of men and is gradually advancing to the front rank of military organizations.

On the second story are the brigade headquarters, which are comfortably furnished and of ample size for the purposes for which they are intended.

Below the drill hall on the north side of the building is a rifle range, and there, under the supervision of an inspector of rifle practice, the members of the regiment are given regular instruction in marksmanship.

It was accepted intact for the United States service, and mustered in as a body. Shortly after Major Gantenben, its former commander, returned from the Philippines, he was appointed adjutant-general for Oregon, and assumed the duties of that office on November 1 of last year.

The main drill hall is in the annex, or new wing of the building, and is 200 feet long by 100 feet wide. It is paved with asphalt; lighted by a score or more of arc lights by night, and by day by windows which comprise nearly half of the arched roof.

But recreation is not the principal end and aim of life at the armory, although it is a very agreeable feature of it. Each company has a drill night once a week, and recruits are drilled by noncommissioned officers appointed for that purpose at more frequent intervals.

are first drilled without muskets, and taught the various steps, and all the other things necessary to mobility under orders. They are also put through the setting-up exercise, which is nothing more than a series of gymnastics, given for the purpose of squaring the shoulders and leading to the figure that erect, soldierly bearing which is so much admired in regulars, and which must be acquired if a Guard regiment is to make a fine appearance on parade.

After the first lesson has been learned, the recruit is given a musket and taught the manual of arms. This is more difficult, but a man who is eager to become a good soldier soon acquires a tolerable proficiency in it, and is then ready to be assigned to a squad, there to drill with other of his fellows.

When called upon, and he does not ask any questions about it. In June, 1898, there was a rumor of trouble with the striking fishermen at Astoria. The National Guardsmen were notified that their services might be needed, but they hardly expected to be called out.

1898, the National Guard immediately volunteered as a body. It was found inexpedient to send them in this way, but the guard organization was made the basis for the formation of the new regiment and, with one or two exceptions, all the officers were taken from the militia, equal consideration being shown the various portions of the state.

has been hardly equaled in Portland. The indoor baseball contests between the different companies; the athletic games, the competitive drills, and the band concerts, all served to fill the Armory to overflowing with big crowds of the friends of the soldiers.

The legislature has uniformly appreciated the importance of the National Guard and has made liberal appropriations for its support. The interest of Multnomah county is shown by the fact that it donated to the Portland regiment a block of ground worth $50,000 and expended $15,000 in building an Armory.

Major, Raymond G. Jubitz. Adjutant, Edward C. Mears. Company E—Captain, Thomas K. Muir; first lieutenant, Philip Gevurtz; second lieutenant, D. T. Bulger.

stem; first lieutenant, R. O. Scott; second lieutenant, Charles F. Reed. Second Battalion (Williamette Valley). Major, R. H. Leabo.

General Calvin V. Gantenben. when called upon, and he does not ask any questions about it. In June, 1898, there was a rumor of trouble with the striking fishermen at Astoria.

They were all sitting around a table in the Gibson House cafe, Fanny and a few other congenial spirits. Some one ordered a drink, and when it came and everyone was about to raise his glass, Fanny said "How!"