daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith, of Vancouver, were married last Thursday.

The Vancouver High Five Club held its final meeting of the series, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McCredie, on Wednesday evening. The winners were W. W. McCredie and Mrs. A. B. Eastham, first, and C. D. Bowles and Mrs. McCredie, second. Instead of awarding prizes the members joined in and treated themselves to a fine spread.

Miss Ellen Nolan was given a very pleasant surprise by a number of her friends last Monday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Ernst. A delightful evening was spent with parlor games and music. Refreshments were served, covers being laid for 33. The affair was in the nature of a farewell to Miss Nolan, who left for Traill, B. C., Tuesday, to be absent some time.

AMONG THE COLLEGES.

Events of the Week at the State University—Elsewhere.

The most important event of the week at the State University was the lecture given on Saturday evening by Dr. Penrose, of Whitman College, under the auspices of the Philologian Society. The lecture, "An Oregon Hero," was an account of the life of the man who saved the Northwest to the Union—the martyred Whitman. The power and personality of the speaker commanded the closest attention from his large audience. Singing by the university quartet was much enjoyed.

The literary societies held their usual meetings last Friday. The debates were on the government ownership of railways, both National and municipal. Much work had been done and some close argument was produced. The Philologians also elected officers: President, M. L. Applegate, '00; vice-president, C. E. Wagner, '01; secretary, J. O. Russell, '02; treasurer, W. G. Beattie, '01; censor, W. L. Whittlesey, '01; sergeant-at-arms, Frederick Stockton, '03.

The Glee Club is clearing up its debts by a successful tour. Last week it delighted a large house at Springfield. A tally-ho load and many other parties went over from Eugene to take it in. After the show Professor and Mrs. Glen entertained the club and others at their home on East Ninth street. This week the vocalists "did up" Cottage Grove, but the returns are not yet in.

At the Republican primaries of last week Regent Friendly, C. A. Wintermeier, '98, and M. [illegible]plegate, '00, were among those elected delegates to the county convention. The 'Varsity Republican Club took an active part in the election and is now [illegible]egistration of members for the November.

The [illegible] students in chemistry have [illegible] informal society meetings, for the study and discussion of scientific journals and other matter. At the meeting last [illegible] papers were read.

[illegible] are looking forward with [illegible] to the advent of Mr. Bryan [illegible] t.

The regular Easter vacation is from April 2 to 8.

TO INCINERATE THE DEAD

PROPOSED CREMATORY TO BE BUILT IN PORTLAND.

Chapel, Retort-Room, Columbarium and Receiving-Room Are Under One Roof.

California is the only state west of the Mississippi to adopt the practice of cremation and those preferring that method to interment must bear the expense of transporting their dead to San Francisco for cremation.

A movement is now on foot to erect a crematory in this city. The Portland Crematory Association was incorporated a few weeks since by a number of prominent citizens and the services of Frank B. Gibson, secretary of the San Francisco Cremation Company, were secured to perfect the organization, prepare plans and raise the necessary funds to erect the building and apparatus.

Under his supervision, Edgar M. Lazarus, the well-known architect, has prepared the sketch plans illustrated herewith which include crematory, chapel, receiving vault and columbarium, under one roof. The estimated cost of the structure is $35,000. It will be of brick with stone trimmings and with slate or tile roof, and fireproof in every detail. The structure from both exterior and interior will resemble a very pretty country church in the Fifteenth and Sixteenth century styles, common in the northern part of Italy. There is absolutely nothing suggestive of its uses or of the sepulchral about it.

The main feature of the exterior is its quaint simplicity, relieved by a massive square tower at the right of the main entrance. The roof is low and pitched at obtuse angles. All the apartments are above ground and on one floor with a double gallery, which is 35 feet wide and 40 feet long, and has a seating capacity of 200. On each side of this chapel there is a loggio opening off which are four rooms, 12x15 feet, which are to be used as a columbarium. These, when decorated with tropical plants, will produce a very pretty effect, and will greatly tend to dispel the gloom incident to funeral services. The organ and choirloft will be located in the gallery over the main entrance, and it is proposed to furnish music free for every cremation service, thereby according to the poor the same services and conveniences enjoyed by the rich in the cremation of their dead.

At the farthest end of the chapel from the entrance on one side is the clergy and waiting-room, with private entrance, grate, lavatory and all modern conveniences. On the other side is located the retorts, two in number, side by side, and in the center or chancel will rest the bier or sarcophagus, fitted with rollers, upon which the casket will be placed, from which, in plain view of all persons, it is run into the retort at the close of the funeral service.

That part of the building usually devoted to the sanctuary, in ecclesiastical architecture is to be devoted to the receiving vault and by double folding doors connect directly with the retort-room, so that those who desire to postpone the incineration for a time can have their dead placed in the vault for a limited period.

The various rooms and passages designed for columbaria for the permanent keeping of the ashes are to be fitted up with fireproof, cement niches or spaces, varying in size from single space to large family spaces—sufficient to accommodate the ashes of several generations. Each of these rooms have outside windows, with iron space beneath, the whole of which can be had for use as memorial windows for those who wish to secure family space and erect some tribute to the memory of the dead.

The fuel to be used will undoubtedly be crude oil, and the apparatus the most modern and complete that money will purchase.

The association is entirely nonsectarian, making no distinction for religion or race. The selection of a site and the election of a board of trustees will be effected as soon as one-half of the capital stock has been subscribed.

PROHIBITION SPEAKER.

Chairman of National Party Will Visit Portland.

Oliver W. Stewart, chairman of the National Prohibition party, will visit the Pacific Coast this month. Following are his dates for Oregon, Washington and Idaho:

Spokane, April 1-2.
Milton, Ore., April 3, afternoon.
Pendleton, Or., April 3, evening.
Boise, Idaho, April 4.
Seattle and Tacoma, April 5 to 8.
Portland, Or., April 9 and 10.

The state convention of the Prohibition party, which has been called to meet in Portland, will be held in the A. O. U. W. building. It will open on the evening of the 9th with a mass meeting, to be addressed by Chairman Stewart. On Tuesday, April 10, at 10 A. M., the business session of the convention will open. Chairman Stewart will be present during the entire session of the convention.

A cordial invitation is extended to every one to attend the mass meeting on the evening of the 9th. Mr. Stewart, the speaker of the evening, is known throughout the East as one of the best platform orators now before the public.

As Mr. Stewart's address is the opening of a campaign of education, which will be continued under John G. Woolley during the month of May, a generous hearing on the part of ministers, lawyers and other leaders of public opinion is especially desired.

An additional interesting feature of both the mass meeting and the convention will be the singing of Professor Dobbins and wife.

TALK ON ART.

Miss Julia Osgood Gives a Delightful Lecture.

A very interesting lecture on art was given in the Hirsch-Selling building yesterday by Miss Julia Osgood, who took for her theme "Why and How We Should Study Art," with some account of art in the United States. Many members of the Portland Art Club and local lovers of art were in the audience. Miss Osgood began by dwelling upon the importance of instructing children in art, surrounding them with beautiful pictures and pointing out to them the beautiful in Nature. She advocated the use of photographs of famous paintings, and suggested that for this purpose only the best photographs be obtained. It was more important, she said, that a child be made acquainted with a few good photographs than many of ordinary merit. She briefly outlined the careers of four great artists—Michael Angelo, whose work in many branches is of the highest order; Rembrandt, whose etchings are so familiar to lovers of art; Durer, whose work in black and white is loved wherever it is known, and Millet. The latter's work, she said, is represented in the United States by many fine paintings, one of the best of which, "The Man With the Hoe," hangs in a drawing-room in San Francisco.

The speaker advocated the study of art in clubs, and spoke of the good work done by the Portland Art Club. She said that Portland enjoyed peculiar advantages in this respect, and that the fact that the Ladd collection of photographs and the Corbett statuary were here had been one of her reasons for visiting the city.

While deploring the lack of art education in America, Miss Osgood said that some of the finest artists now wielding the brush are Americans. She hopes to see the day when, as in European countries, galleries will be open to rich and poor, and all will have an opportunity to study the work of their countrymen. She made many apt and beautiful quotations from Emerson and Ruskin, and illustrated her talk with several incidents, among them being the story of how Rossetti painted his famous portrait of his wife.

Miss Osgood Before the Woman's Club

Miss Osgood, who appears next Saturday afternoon before the Portland Woman's Club, has spent several years abroad, as well as in this country, in the study of art, and is an artist in her interpretation of the subject. Her exceptional knowledge of art matters and her sympathetic and comprehensive manner of delivery place her in the foremost rank of women lecturers. Miss Osgood has delighted listeners and scholars of art from the Atlantic to the Pacific, having frequently appeared before Eastern audiences, including the Boston Art Museum, Chicago and other places, equally critical, all of which pronounce her talks literary treats. Miss Osgood recently appeared before the Denver Woman's Club, and, upon closing, was recalled to the platform—this being the first honor of the kind shown any one by that club.

OLD LADIES RECEIVE.

Nearly 400 Visitors at the Patton Home for the Aged.

The annual reception and tea at the Patton Home for old ladies on Wednesday last was very largely attended, nearly 400 visitors calling during the afternoon. The hallways and public room were decorated with Oregon grape in blossom and wild currant branches, while the dining-room was green and white. The guests were received by the members of the committee in charge of the Home. The ladies who presided at the tea table were: Mrs. A. R. Diamond, Mrs. H. W. Goddard, Mrs. E. T. Williams, Mrs. W. H. Fear and Miss O'Reilly, and these were assisted by Misses Winnie Hays, Lottie Fink, May La Moree, Bertha Rutherford and Mrs. Pennick, while the Misses Harris, Koshland, O'Connor and Edna J. Jeffery, members of the "Flower Mission," had charge of the candy booths.

Voting at Primaries.

OPHIR, March 22.—(To the Editor.)—Please state can a man who lives in one precinct go to another precinct and vote in the primaries for delegates to go to the county convention? M. R.

Such an act is very unusual. Any attempt would undoubtedly be balked by the judges.

GOV. LORD HAS CORDIAL WELCOME AT BUENOS AYRES.

Formal Exchange of Civilities With President Roca of Argentine Republic—Public Recognition.

(Buenos Ayres Standard, Feb. 15.)

Shortly before 10 yesterday morning the new Minister of the United States of America, Colonel William P. Lord, accompanied by Mr. Francois Stewart Jones, Secretary of the Legation, left the Royal Hotel in the state carriage, accompanied by a strong squadron of the Presidential escort, for the Government House, where at 10 he presented his credentials to President Roca. There were present in the state apartments, Dr. Yofre, Minister of the Interior and acting Minister of Foreign Affairs; Dr. Rosa, Minister of Finance; General L. M. Campos, Minister of War; Commodore Rivadavia, Minister of Marine; Dr. Garcia Merou, Minister of Agriculture; the "Intendente" of War, the "Intendente" of Marine, Lord Mayor Bullrich, the Chief of the Army staff, a number of other high officials and many Army and Navy officers, fully 150 persons in all.

On being formally presented to President Roca, Colonel Lord spoke as follows:

"Mr. President—I am instructed by the President of the United States to inform Your Excellency that he has chosen me as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Argentine Republic, and, in accordance therewith, to present my letter of credence, which, I trust, may be available in leading to an agreeable personal as well as official acquaintance, in strengthening the ties of friendship between our Governments, and in promoting an interchange of products and commodities, mutually beneficial to each.

"It gives me profound pleasure to assure Your Excellency of the high personal esteem which the President of the United States entertains for you, and his earnest desire to continue the peaceful relations which have so long existed between our Governments, and which are believed to be conducive to social progress, intellectual achievement, and National prosperity.

"The creation of your Republic through tribulations that "tired men's souls"; the adoption for its Government of those great constitutional principles which safeguard personal liberty and render secure rights of property; the rapid growth of your country in population and material wealth, in industrial activity and commercial enterprise, all combine to give stability to your Government, and foreshadow an abounding future and splendid destiny for your country. I beg to assure Your Excellency that the President and our people are gratified at your progress and rejoice at your prosperity.

"I am authorized to say that, owing to the resignation of our former Minister, Mr. Buchanan, while on a leave of absence in the United States, thereby precluding him from presenting to Your Excellency in person his letter of recall and expressing those kindly and elevated sentiments that an occasion of leavetaking would inspire or suggest, I have been charged with the duty of presenting such letter of recall.

"Impressed with the conviction that Mr. Buchanan discharged the duties of his mission with satisfaction to his own and the Government to which he was accredited, I own, I shall feel a sense of duty well performed if I shall be able to discharge a like trust confided to me with equal intelligence, efficiency and ability.

"Mr. President, I have now the honor to present you the letters to which I have alluded."

His Excellency, the President, then replied in the following terms:

"It is with pleasure that I receive your credentials as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to my Government.

"It is highly satisfactory to me to receive the kindly sentiments for this people and myself personally expressed by the President of the United States. I beg that you will transmit to him my keen appreciation of his worth and assure him that the Argentine Nation is animated by the same friendly feelings toward the Great Republic of the North, whose power and extraordinary progress are the admiration of the world.

"Our Republic, engaged earnestly, like all the people of South America, in the laborious process of organizing itself on a definite basis, has found in the political institutions of the United States the guarantees of free peoples who trust to finding their well-being in order and work.

"Mr. Buchanan, your worthy predecessor, cultivated with my Government the most cordial and friendly relations, thus contributing to the increase of commerce between the two countries.

"On handing me the letters of recall which put an end to his mission, you tell me that you come animated by the same spirit, desirous in your official relations of obtaining perfect success in the fulfillment of your mission; and I, for my part, promise that I will gladly give you the hearty support that you deserve.

"You are now recognized in your character as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary."

The formal business of the day having been concluded, the large party present engaged in friendly introductions and chat with Colonel Lord, and refreshments were not wanting to cement the success of the ceremony.

IN OPERATIC SELECTIONS.

Brehany Company Pleases an Audience at Y. M. C. A.

Friends and supporters of the Portland Young Men's Christian Association comfortably filled the gymnasium hall of the headquarters last evening at the Louise Brehany ballad and opera concert.

A well-ordered programme of choice selections, rendered in a charming manner, together with the high tone of the audience, qualified the recital for wider appreciation. It was, in short, a musical event of exceptional merit, and would have pleased a critical opera-house audience.

The numbers were presented by Louise M. Brehany, soprano; Jessie Beatrice Monroe, contralto; Miss Olga Schmoll, a youthful violinist; Louis J. Mintz, tenor; Forrest D. Carr, basso, and W. Guillaume Sauvlet, pianist and accompanist.

Individually, perhaps, the artists may have appeared to a slightly superior advantage, in the common judgment, but the ensemble in the second act of "Martha"—wherein the daintiest gems were given—was undoubtedly the most approved of by the highly pleased spectators. The extracts from "Martha" were sung in costume—Louise Brehany in the titular role, Miss Monroe as Nancy, Mr. Carr as Plunkett, and Mr. Mintz as Lionel.

Miss Brehany's soprano is of a soft, sympathetic timbre, and her expression is just proper for concert work. Mr. Mintz' rendition of "Oh, So Fair," was excellent.

Miss Monroe's contralto is fully as pleasing as any voice heard here this season. Her "Spring Tide," by Becker, called for an encore, which was "Good-bye, Sweet Day." The soprano, who sang with grace and sweetness "Could I" and "Thine Forever," responded to tributes with "I Wouldn't, Would You?" and another captivating ditty, both musical gems. Messrs. Mintz and Carr blended tenor and basso most acceptably in "The Gondoliers."

W. Guillaume Sauvlet, who is an opera conductor, pianist and composer of widely-known reputation, gave an exhibition of his skill in composition. Two numbers, "Little Coquette" and "The Second Gavotte," were very pretty. Miss Schmoll, who is scarce 15 years old, revealed an artistic nature and discriminating training by her violin fantasia.

All the members of the company have the advantage of good looks. The Brehany combination hails from Chicago. The excellence of the attraction was a credit to the local Y. M. C. A., and was above the average standard of such concerts.

"Little strokes fell great oaks." You may escape winter colds by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.
