FEEBLE ATTEMPT.

Independent Movement Lacks Enthusiasm.

An independent ticket does not seem likely in the coming political contest, if the early efforts to organize and launch it are a criterion. That meeting in the Worcester block, at which O. H. Ballou presided, was not of a character to augur great success. Ballou and his few adherents appear to be the principal portio of the ticket and its support, while the ew independent candidates filt around feverishly to ascertain if there is anything to swell their hopes. Ballou seems to be able to offer but little more than his own vote, which is not a sufficient attraction to unite the disappointed office-scekers who cannot resist their country's call.

Ballou has split with the Go d Governent Association first receiving his attention. A week ago he and about 20 sym-pathizers met in the Third-Street Mission rooms and set up a party of their own. Ballou installed himself as chairman, or president, while Charles E. Lockwood en-tered upon the duties of secretary. Betered upon the duties of secretary. Be-yond organization, nothing was done there, except to adjourn. The second meeting was held Friday evening, in the Worcester building. A. Shorey. T. H. Smith, Secretary Lockwood and Chairman Ballou, with some 15 to 20 other patriots, conducted what they termed a "citizens" meeting." After the meeting was called to order there seemed to be a sort of hull in business, pending the arrival of the various candidate who were to appear on arlous candidate who were to appear on various candidate who were to appear on the scene with their adherents. The can-didates never came. Why is not so clear, but some of them insinuate that the suc-cess of the new. Independent movement seems to hinge too much on the immediate raising of a substantial campaign fund. With this prerequisite squarely placed before them whenever a grand coalition of forces is talked of by the reformers. the candidates are not hurrying to the front of the great independent ticket. Oth-er candidates even say that their hurried investigation of Ballou and his new re-form movement reveals that his following not much larger than his secretary nd that his present influence is mostly desumption. The citizens' meeting ac-complished little, and may not hold many meetings, unless the independent idates can be persuaded to usher their great following in to work on a com-William Reed, now chairman of the Good Covernment Association, states that O. H. Ballou is not now connected with the Executive Committee of the associa-tion, nor has influenced its course since Ballou was succeeded as a member of the Executive Committee.

BROWNELL THANKS HIS FRIENDS.

Calls on Them to Give Loyal Support to Tongue.

State Senator Brownell publishes a let-r in the Oregon City Enterprise thanking his friends for the cordial support given him in his late Congressional cam-paism, and adding: "The convention decreed that Hon. Thos. H. Tongue should carry the stand-ard of our party to victory in this cam-paign. We are Republican soldiers-we are privates-we are not shulkers or stragliberty, property and religion." It will be thus observed that this bill is like that which was passed at different times after the accession of territory by the United States, and refers everything to the President. The military, civil and judicial powers necessary to govern the island until otherwise provided, is to be vested in the President of the United islands in the free enjoyment of their

States, through persons he may select for the purpose. The President can continue to govern the islands as a military district; or he can appoint a commission; or provide any kind of a government that he sees fit, but it still will be a govern-ment through the President. More than this, the government must remain , rder the military authorities until the insurrection is suppressed, and it will be left to the judgment of the President to determine when the insurfection is over. The best legal authorities agree that the President has no power to change or al-ter the rates of duty on goods coming from the Philippines to the United States. The President himself determined this question in the case of Puerto Rico after taking the hard legal addies he had at taking the best legal advice he had at hand. The best lawyers in the Senate, speaking of the Spooner bill, agree with that proposition exactly. They further as-sert that they cannot even delegate to the President the authority to remit duties in his discretion. Congress went as far as it could go in providing in the Puer-to Rican bill that the duties on goods going to and coming from Puerto Rico should be remitted when a system of tax-ation was provided by the Government of that island. It is well understood, how-ever, that the President cas make any such tariff regulations for the Philippines as he chooses; not only on American goods going into the Philippines, but goods go-ing into the Philippines from other countries. This is well understood to be the case, while a section of the country is under military control. It is said that the Spooner bill will not alter this condition

Spooner bill will not after this contraction in the least, as it merely gives the Presi-dent the same power after the insurrection is suppressed that he possesses while the insurrection is in force, by reason of his position as commander-in-chief of the an alarm clock. irmy. It is well understood when the tariff question comes up as regarding the Phil-ippines that it will be a greater problem than even that of Puerto Rico. It is also believed that there will be greater oppo-sition to the free admission of goods com-ing into the United States from the Philippines or going to the Philippines from the United States than there was from and to Puerto Rico, for the reason that under the treaty Spain has the right to admission of her goods into the islands, on the same terms as the United States. Every nation having a treaty with the United States would, under the "most fa-vored nation clause," be entitled to the admission of social into the Philipping as admission of goods into the Philippines on the same terms. This, of course, would mean a breaking down of tariff regulations of the United States, which this Government is not ready or willing to as-whether the President will make any other the President will make any changes in the duties on goods going into the Philippines or not, is an open question, but it is necessarily the president will but it is presumed that on such goods as are considered necessaries of life, there will be a reduction in the interest of the people of the Philippines.

Medford Mail. Why not cease to pursue a business with-out a margin, and take up someting offer-ing more promise of profit. There is a large overplus of wheat in the world's market now, and this condition will re-main until there is a pronounced shortage

Louisville Courier-Journal. The Springfield Republican makes a good point when it says: Suppose a "citizen of Puerto Rico" should go to Europe and be abused by some European official. What government could he claim the protection of? The theory thus far has been that, in order to claim the protection of the United States abroad, a man must be a citizen of the United States. But a "citizen of Puerto Bico" is not an American citizen and is not to be. According to the new law, this is true, but could it not be stretched in construc-tion so as to warrant the United States in protecting 15 per cent of a Puerto Rican in Europe? With that much under the wings of the eagle, we might at least save enough Puerto Ricans for seed.

Manchester Ship Canal.

The Manchester ship canal seems to be slowly becoming a paying affair, though it does not yet realize the bright hopes of its projectors-as few canals do. Its entire capital account is now $76,250,000, on which the last semi-annual net return was $21.-170. This was enough to pay interest on the first and second mortgage debentures, leaving $92,000 to go to meet the claims of Manchester. The toll-paying merchandise using the canal was 1,452,287 tons, a gain of 31,000 tons over 1898. There is a good prospect of a considerable increase of revenue in the near future.
