E. L. SMITH TELLS OF FRUIT IN THE FIFTH DISTRICT.

New President of Horticultural Board Indorses Astrachan Apple-Eastern Oregon Orchards.

HOOD RIVER, Or., May 18.-Henry E. Dosch, Secretary Oregon State Board of Horticulture, Portland, Or.—Dear Sir: Having recently made an extended visit of inspection to many of the orchards of the fifth horticultural district, I frust that a brief summary of observations will not prove uninteresting.

On Monday morning, April 30, I arrived at La Grande, where I met, by appointment, Commissioner Judd Geer. We at once proceeded to plan a campaign to some of the more important fruit-producing sections of Umatilla, Union, Baker and Malheur Countles. Three days were devoted to Grand Ronde Valley, one each in the vicinity and north of La Grande, the Cove and Union. I cannot tarry to individualize the many thrifty and well-cared-for orchards we visited in these three days. extent of the fruit industry in Grand Ronde Valley was a surprise to me, and, as no injury had been suffered from the effects of frosts of April 8 and 9, the output of fruit from this favored valley promises to be unprecedentedly large. The horticulturists of Union County so far have suffered but slightly from insect posts, and Herman Geer, the pioneer nurseryman of all this section, informed me that he had yet to see a codlin moth in his orchards.

In the town of La Grande, and also in small places in Union, the moth is uncommon, and in the latter place oyster-shell scale was found in two

M. L. Oldenburg, of La Grande, thinks the codiin moth was introduced largely by fruit cars that had been used elscthere and he had found many of these insects in such cars while standing on the siding at La Grande. Owing to the elevation of Grand Ronde Valley, the orchards not only escape many of the frosts incident to lower levels, but apples grown there are unusually firm and exellent keepers.
At Mr. Oldenburg's fruithouse I found not only the late varieties, but Fall Pip-pins and Grimes' Golden in fair preserva-tion, on the last day of April.

The deep, sandy soil along the Grand Ronde River north of La Grande pro-duces a vigorous tree growth, and is easily cultivated. It was a pleasure to observe the fine tilth in the orchards of Oldenburg, Kelly, Nessly, Huey, Hall and

In the old Ryneareon place my attention was attracted to a Red Astrachan tree planted Z years ago, which had yielded boxes of apples at a single harvest. On May 1 we drove across the valley some 15 miles to the hospitable home of Commissioner Geer, at the Cove. This ction is too well known to warrant a scription. Sheltered from the strong ads, with a soil of surpassing richness, and with a slope that insures ample drain age, it presents an ideal location for the horticulturist, which he has hastened to improve. It is a section of small holdings and comfortable homes. Prunes, applies, cherries and pears abound everywhere. Orchards to the left of you and orchards to the right of you, the later varieties beautiful in their blossoming, the earlier thickly set with young fruit. Again and again the thought came to me as I passed along these orchard-covered slopes of the Blue Mountains, how will this people be able to care for the immense harvest that will soon come to them? We inspected the orchards of Stackland Bros., Conkling & Belden, and from ne of Herman Geer, the father of our Governor and Commissioner, which is located high up the mountain slope, we the county seat, and it was a genuine delight to walk through the well-kept premof Goodbroad, Townly & Gal-

Our old friend, Tom Wright, whose hospitality I always enjoy when at Union, has set an orchard of 120 acres. I regret that on a small portion of the tract the hardpan is too near the surface for suc-

Quite a different country is that adjacent to Ontario, in Malheur County. With a much less allitude, a hotter sun and a scant rainfall. Here the sagebrush and the jackrabbit formerly reigned supreme, and both are yet greatly in evidence. But note the redeeming power of water. Three ditches have been constructed; the most important, at an exuse of about $190,000, receives its waters from Owyhee River, and is some 30 miles in length. The second taps the Malheur, and the third Snake River. The land below these ditches is being rapidly im-proved, and as we drove through this country the contrast was often very marked between the sagebrush on one side of the road and a wealth of alfalfa and orchards on the other. The season here is weeks in advance of that of rand Ronde, and the apricots seemed half-grown. The orchards in this setion are of considerable size. One of 120 acres, on the K. S. D. ranch, while Roberry an Glise, who made an exhibit of fine fruit at the last meeting of the Northwest Fruitsrowers' Association in Portland, has some 70 acres on his old place, and 120 acres more on a new place might, for but three days before he had taken to his home a fair young wife. I have yet to see in the state more vigor-us or finer-shaped trees than in the 6-Year-old orchard at Van Glise's home

There are many Hollanders in this sec-Malheur, and wherever water is their industry will cause the desert to disappear.

It was a matter of regret that we could not visit Vale and the adjacent country, but Oregon is too large a state to be covered in a single season. On the return trip to Huntington we noticed an im-mense area set to orchards in the vicin-ity of Payette and Weiser, in Idaho.

The great Snake River Valley bids fair to distance all competitors in alfalfa and fruit production; and horriculturists will do well to keep an eye, not on Pasco, but to keep an eye, not on Pasco, but on the valley of the Snake.

At Huntington I procured a team and gove down the left bank of Snake River a far as Conner Creek, a noted mining

What is known as the Cook orchard is What is known as the Cook orchard is situated at the mouth of this stream, and such an orchard! Plenty of water, alluvial soil, and almost tropical heat in Summer, produce most luxuriant tree growth. Trees too near together, branches interlacing, how can they ever be sprayed? Apricots, peach, pear, cherries and applies in great profusion. This fine orchard is now in the care of Mr. Bowman, part owner, and the hountailty of man, part owner, and the hospitality of whose family we greatly enjoyed. This orchard is noted for the earliness and excellence of its fruits, but, unfor-tunately, is distant some 12 miles from Huntington, its shipping point. A mile above Conner Creek is located the well-known Hamilton place, with extensive orchards, now the property of the state. orchards, now the property of the state. It is a valuable property, but shows signs of past neglect. The jovial Irishman in charge answered us that there were not people enough this side of Huntington to pick all the cherries on the place, and an examination of the frees seemed to confirm his statement.

price for their fruits. When the law of gravitation forces the construction of a railroad down Snake from Huntington to Lewiston, then orchards will be exceedingly profitable to their owners.

Back to Huntington and thence to Milton, the famous fruit district of Umailia County. I had heard that San Jose scale was quite prevalent in the Milton orchards, and that there was a demand for the more was quite prevalent in the Milton orchards, and that there was a demand for the more rigid enforcement of the horticultural law relating to fruit pests, but after spending three days in examining orchards I was unable to find any live scale. There was abundant evidence of their former presence, but climatic conditions or beneficial insects seem to have destroyed them.

Ex.Communicar Hobbs accommended me Ex-Commissioner Hobbs accompanied me a portion of the time, and his knowledge of the country, condition of orchards and acquaintance with the people materially sessisted me in my examination.

The fine nursery of Miller & Son, occupying some 30 acres, is a credit to those gentlemen. It is the principal nursery in Oregon east of the Cascades, and is not excelled anywhere for systematic arrangement and thorough cultivation. I was, however, one day late in arriving at

LAST OF WASHINGTON COUNTY'S FIRST FRAME SCHOOL

HILLSBORO. May 25.-A few miles northeast of Hillsboro, in the heart of what is known as the North Plains of the Tualatin, stands the first frame school building erected in the County of Washington, a slient memoir of the pioneer wilderness and the struggle for better conditions. The building will be torn down this Summer, as it was replaced with a modter conditions. The building will be torn down this Summer, as it was replaced with a modern structure a few years ago, after it had given service for nearly 50 years. The first real school meeting of the settlers was November 21. 1851, and at this assembly was organized District No. 1, its numerical title still clinting to it. The body was made up of six of seven pioneers, all of whom have passed away except Stephen A. Holcomb, who still lives at West Union. The directors elected were James W. Chambers, whose daughter, Mrs. Dr. F. A. Balley, now resides in this city; D. T. Lenox and Caleb Wilkins. It was voted to raise $500, and the site of the building was on the S. A. Holcomb donation claim. But one vote was recorded against the motion. The board subsequently decided to have the structure 20 feet wide and 30 feet in length. Amass Brooks and J. A. McCoy took the contract, put up the building, and May 17 the directors gave their note, on 13 days' time, for the cost thereof, $550. Miss E. H. Lincoln was the first teacher in the new building. Judge E. D. Shattuck was the first School Superintendent to turn county school money over to the district. In was the first School Superintendent to turn county school money over to the district. In 1852 there were 18 pupils, which was increased to 47 in 1858. At this school attended Congressman Tongue, his first initiation in public institutions after reaching America from England. The old records are very interesting, and have many entries unique and suggestive of pioneer life. One paragraph reads:

Here as eisewhere they have come to realize that they must practice up-to-date methods or decline the pursuit. During my recent trip I traveled some 1500 miles by rail and about 150 by wagon, and yet have visited only one of the five horticultural districts of the state.

These visits impress one forcibly with the immense area of our state, its diver-sity of climate and soll, and possibilities of future development.

In many instances I found trees too closely planted, and too many varieties grown for great commercial value. Again, the greatest care should be exer-cised in planting orchards on deep, well-drained soil. Many failures have resulted from setting trees on a bed of impervious clay or hardpan, or where water stands a few feet below the surface. While some of the river bettoms, such as that of the a little to the southwest, and just under the line of the Owyhee ditch. This strengthens my theory that orchardlets would do well to plant all Astrachan trees, and the second year thereafter bud or graft to varieties to suit, and they will then secure trees resistant to cold and of unsurpassed vigor.

Commissioner Judd Geer accompanied me east of the Blue Mountains, and I found him to be well informed and anxious to do his whole duty. The fifth district, however, is too large, and Umatilia County should be detached from it. If space permitted, I would like to compliment many orchardists whose wellkept places I visited and whose hospital-ity I enjoyed. I was most cordially re-ceived, not only by fruitgrowers, but by the press and such business men as I incidentally met. Very truly yours, E. L. SMITH, President State Board of Horticulture.

"Julia, dear," said Young Mr. Gilley, timidly, to his charmer, "do you think that a married couple could live on a salary of $550 a year?"

"Oh. Dick." replied Julia, earnestly. "I saw in the Ladies' and Gents' Home Journal an account of how a man supported himself, his wife and two children on $350 a year. I'll run and get the paper."
Invitations were issued the following week.—Detroit Free Press.

There is no better watered country anywhere than thut portion of Waliz Walle Valley embraced in the Milton and Freewater section. Seemingly, every farm has its trout brook and clover fields, and butter, as well as fruit, can be produced largely here.

TRIBUTE TO COLORED SOLDIERS

Their Good Conduct While Stationed at Vancouver Barracks.

VANCOUVER, Wash., May 24 .- (To the Editor.)-Now that Company B, Twenty-fourth United States Infantry, has gone, it would be almost unpardonable not to give it some public mention. The soldier-ly and uniformly good conduct of the men during their 13 months' garrison duty at Vancouver Barracks gained for them warm friends and admirers among Vancouverites, many of whom regretted to see the boys leave, and were loud in their praise of their exemplary deportment dur-Ing their brief stay.

Company B reached Vancouver from Fort Douglas Utah, April 2, 1899, and has been here continuously up till the 16th
Inst., with the exception that part of the company was in Wardner, Idaho, for a brief spell. At the time of departure on brief spell. At the time of departure on the 18th inst., the company had its full complement of men, 169. There have been numerous promotions and changes, how-ever, and two, Sergeants Chase and Gipson, having served 30 years each, are on the retired list. The two men of the com-pany who have been so instrumental in keeping the boys up to such an excellent standard are First Sergeant Mac Stan-field and Company Quartermaster's Ser-geant C. W. Grayson. Stanfield is a na-tive of Nashville. Tenn., and Grayson was born on the banks of the blue Mus-kingum in the smoky, but not sleepy. kingum, in the smoky, but not sleepy, city of Zanesville, O. The former has seen II years of service, and the latter 25. Each aspires to the coveted 39 years. Private Smelton was made Sergeant-Major of the battalion during the stay Hill is First Duty Sergeant, and a good one he is, too. Joe White is still sound-ing his sweet trumpet; he has been so do-ing for 28 years, having served from the old original Ninth Cavalry. Private Hargrove, as chef, and Private Harden, as second cook, look well after the kitchen details, and set up excellent service to

Taken as a whole, Company B has seen much service. It was in the Victoria campaign in Texas in 1880. It has at different times been stationed in Indian Territory, Arizona, Utah and Washington, as well as in Cuba and Idaho. It had its most memorable engagement at Santiago, where it lost 12 brave men. At present, the location of the 12 companies of the Twenty-fourth Infantry are: B and M, Fort Wright, Wash.; L, in Alaska; D, in Fort Harrison, Mont., and the other eight companies are in the Philippines Com-pany B turns over Vancouver Barracks in good shape to its successors, and with Company B go the best wishes of Vancouver in general.
