

The Bathing Maid.

Oh, siry, fairy dream Ob, airy, fairy maid; Care free, In loveliness arrayed.

I see you gayly splash, And o'er the next one said And trail, Your sandals white and blue.

I see like skeins of gold Your tresses as they shine; Like morning's beams they glance And dance

Along the purple brine The music of the main Is murmuring to me, For, floating near the bar, You are The music of the ses.

Oh, lovely Summer girl! Oh, pearl Beauty's fragile shell, ugh all your witching wiles And emiles, know enchantment's spell. Which spell breaks when your hair,

That's toying with your toe.

VARIOUS PEOPLE RECEIVE

Except Concerts and Musical Recitals, Very Few Other Social Functions Reported.

"There is absolutely nothing going on." So say the society people of Portland, one and all. Everybody is going, or getting ready to go, somewhere for the Summer. It is yet too early and too cold tains to be attractive, though a few have gone seaward. Europe is claiming a fair share of Portlanders this season; every week chronicles the departure of parties of two and three, bent upon seeing the Paris Exposition and whatever else may be crowded into a Summer trip across the water.

One of the most important social events of the week was an out-of-town affaira reception given by Mrs. Jacobs, of Vancouver, Thursday afternoon. A goodly number of Portland people were invited and went-among others, Mrs. Sol Hirsch, Mrs. H. W. Goode, Mrs. Kenneth Macketsle and Mrs. Beebe. The bostess and her throng of guests were elegantly gowned, the decorations beautiful, and the efforts of the lowering rain clouds proved poweriess to dampen or diminish the pleasure of the occasion. Another reception that was largely at tended was given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. I. D. Peters, at her beautiful new home, 195 Twenty-fourth street. The house was not darkened, and the recep hall, with its subdued green walks white paneling, was fragrant and glowing with great quantities of La Franco roses. The effect was as charm-ing as it was unusual. The drawing-room and library were tastefully decorated with marguerites and sweet peas while the dining-room was all in white and green, with a background of warm dark red.

Those Who Assisted. Mrs. and Miss Wing, of Seattle, and Mrs.

Labertenux received with Mrs. Peters Mrs. R. R. Hogue and Mrs. H. Colton presided in the dining-room, and wen charmingly supplemented by Miss Grant, Miss Wilkins and Miss Andrews, Mrs Ralph Hoyt served water ices, assisted by Miss Florence Hubbard and Miss Agnes Hill. Mrs. George Weldler, Mrs. Walter White, Mrs. Nitchy, Mrs. H. A. Nobie and Mrs. F. Pendleton nesisted Mrs. Peters in receiving and entertaining her guests. The reception given to Miss None Bowman, lately returned from Manila, was an altogether delightful affair. It was at the Auditorium Tuesday night, and was prefaced by a clever farce, in which the principal roles were taken by Mrs. Winfelder, Mrs. Turpley, Mrs. Dick, Mrs. An-non and Miss Fox. There was dancing, and refreshments were daintily served. The decorations were purely patriotic, the Stars and Stripes being largely in evi-dence, draped and trailed and suspended all about the hall. The dresses—but you are tired of dress. However, Miss Bowman's gown is worthy of special mention, from the fact that it illustrates, in a manner—and in a manner peculiarly attractive and clear to the feminine minthe importance of the possibilities of our new possessions in the Philippines, since it was a product of the looms of Luzon, a wonderful and beautiful fabric, known as pineapple cloth, in black and gold thin, almost diaphanous, and fine enough night though driven indoors by the rain, was a most enjoyable event. There were dainty refreshments and, also, an inter-ceting programme, to add to the pleasare of the guests.
