AT THE COAST, July 14.-The number AT THE COAST, July 14.—The number and wife, M. J. Murk, Charles Cook and of people taking their summer outing at wife, Isaac Stern, H. S. Gile, all of Port-Long Beach this season is very nearly double that of former years. The migration to the seaside is greatly in advance of former seasons, and in considering the increased transient population, this F. L. Ramsdell, Captain Alexander Gorcondition should be regarded. Seemingly, don and wife, H. S. Simon and family. people were but waiting for the curtain to fall on the great annual July cele-bration, as a signal to hie away to the Coast, there to take up summer rest-cottages. The demand for houses is unprecedented, and even at this early date, one will find it no easy task to secure private epartments. But this does not mply that all the people who will be at the beach this summer have arrived. Almost every cottager is preparing to enter-tain several guests, and the great crowds which came this week were pleasantly settled in a very short time, and still very few more cottages were opened.

Not a few cottages are being constructed. While some of them will not be fully completed this year, they will afford suffi-cient accommodation this season and will be engeriy taken.

Hotel Men Sangaine. The hotels have not shared very heavily in the profits of the early rush. Their proprietors are all expectant, however, prove their faith by works, all of them are adding to their several places and parties, musicales, bonfires and like entertainments. Driving is the amusement most generally indulged in, and no better place exists than Long Boach for one to fully realize the enjoyment of this aport, weather is delightful, although Jupiter Pluvius has been unkind enough to out in an appearance on one or more secasions during the week. Conditions generally, however, may be regarded as there is much pleasure in store for the gay throng which will leave its prints on the sands of Long Beach this Compers are beginning to put in an appearance, and around Long Beach and Seaview may be found the canvas homes of many folks off for an outing. At Long Beach.

The coming week will likely inaugurate the dancing scason at Long Beach, and then, almost every night, there will be opportunity for the lovers of the terpeiorean art to indulge in amusement to their hearts' content.

The bicycle paths are in fine condition. and there is a great increase in the numper of wheels at the beach.

Long Beach is favored by a good share of the transient population. It is a beautiful spot, dotted with many cottages, some of the occupants of which are: A. Kaiser and family, E. H. Bahmer and family, Mrs. Charles Fernau, Mrs. E. J. Houck P. W. Gillette and family. Thomas Houck, P. W. Gillette and family, Thomas Richards and family, Mrs. M. A. Mills and family, Mrs. A. J. Byers and family, Mrs. Stewart and family, Mrs. James Borden and family, Mrs. Ernest Bross and family, E. W. Moore and family, Mrs. John Pope and family, Mrs. Fannie Wheeler and family, Mrs. T. Masters and family, Mrs. F. A. Knapp and family, J. D. Harp and family, Mrs. D. M. Russell and family, and Mrs. Walker and Mrs. C. C. Fall, at Holman cottage.

At Seaview. Seaview has its full quots of beach folk. Among those occupying cottages, and not otherwise mentioned, are the following named people: G. Castendieck and family, Mrs. L. S. Vali and son, Mrs. D. Haley and family, Mrs. Alsager (Lee cottage), Mrs. William Harder and family, P. Shanderman and family, Mrs. J. Bigham and family, Mrs. Harry O'Brien and child. Morris Walton and family, Al Verstick and family, H. J. Larsen and family, H. J. Hayward and family, Mrs. J. M. Rus-sell and family (Sutherlin cottage), G. Whitcomb, Mrs. G. D. Green, Mrs. M. Baum and family, and A. B. C. Dennison, all of Portland.

Ocean Park shared in the early migration. It is quite a distance up the beach from the other stopping places, and its patrons are people who make it their yearly outing resort, and have come to reale its many charms and advantages. The gaged the Garschkwne cottage for the following named persons may be found among others, to be nicely located in the cottages at Ocean Park: Mrs. C. Weir and family, Mrs. D. Hood be expected. A party of 20 people from Portland has engaged quarters for several weeks, from the 20th of the present month.

The steamer T. J. Potter, from Portland, and the Ilwaco Rallway & Navigation Company's regular line from Astoria, form a very easy and pleasant way to reach the beach. The rallroad from Ilwaco to Nahcottah also cares well for the traveler.

TRUTHS PLAINLY SPOKEN. Woman's Arraignment of Women Who Shirk Maternity.

PORTLAND, July 14 .- (To the Editor.)-Not long since I overheard one young woman ask another whether a friend who was said to be very unhappy in her married life was the mother of a family, and the answer came with startling distinctness: "Oh, bless you, no! She is too cute for that." I was so astonished that I stood and looked after them for some moments, and then a feeling that was a mingling of sorrow and pity came over me, for the woman who was "too cute" to be a mother. Is it worth while to say that woman misses the greatest joy we poor mortals can ever know? What sort of moral training must it be that fills a girl's heart with such a selfish, cruel thought? "Too cute" to know the tender, blissful thought that to you belongs the glory of giving to the world a life; "too cute" to feel the joy that fills a mother's heart at the first wavering touch of baby fingers, as the tlny hands grope fluttering and uncertain toward the fount of its existence; to kiss the downy head press-ing the pillow so lightly, while she clasps the tender, living, breathing little body that is a part of her very self. O mothers! teach your daughters that to hold a little babe to their hearts, know-ing the fullness of motherhood, is to experience the purest joy given to us on earth, a compensation for all the aches of heart and body. Teach your son that to be the father of a child to care for and guide to womanhood or manhood is the best promoter of happiness he can Girls, you may some day be mothers; do be "too cute" to remember the pleas-hours spent about mother as she mended the pinafore torn in the last mad romp with brother and sister, and sang you the songs that children love. Measure the love you felt for her then, not later, when you had grown old enough to be selfish and some of the pure child-love was gone, but when, in a burst of affection, you clasped your arms about her as she bent to kiss you good-night, and cried, "I love you, mother dear," and then if you can pray, let it be that you may not, when the time co cute" to know the joys of being a mother.
