Not in It With the Drug Clerk.

New Orleans Times-Democrat.
"I noticed in the papers the other day," said a young New Orleans lawyer, "that the National Association of Masters of Dancing—not dancing masters, please observe—had laid down a set of cast-iron specifications as to the correct position to assume when waiting. The paragraph recalled very vividly to my mind an experience which I had last Summer in a little country town over in Alabama—I guess I'd better not mention the name, as I may have to go back some time, and I don't want to get lynched. The place was off the line of the railroad, and the principal amusement of the young people was an occasional dance in the evening. One of these functions occurred on the second day of my visit, and, of course, I attended. I found several pretty girls present, and when a 'round dance' was called I secured one of them as a partner; but, in spite of the fact that I have always been regarded as a first-rate waiter, I saw at once that I wasn't making a favorable impression. The pretty girl soon complained that she 'couldn't keep step' with me, and after talking her to a seat I hunted up a rural friend and asked him what was wrong. 'I dunno,' he said, 'unless it's the funny way you stand. Looks like you was kinder scared of the girl.' Just then the acknowledged beau of the village appeared. He was the local druggist and was gotten up regardless in a long-tailed coat, low vest and blue four-in-hand cravat. Without wasting time, he seized one of the fair damsels, planted his right hand, with all the fingers outspread, exactly between her

Share Their Vacation.

New York Post.
When the weather gets hot in London the leading lawyers leave their city quarters for the country to enjoy what they term the "long vacation," a period of about 16 weeks. Close by the Inner Temple, one of the headquarters and resorts of these lawyers, are the neighboring poor districts, where live small children who don't have "long vacations." And now come these great "long vacation" lawyers and say, in effect, to these small children, to the boys and to the girls: "Beginning with June 12, you small boys and girls, the Inner Temple Gardens, the green grass, the trees and the flowers thereof, are by permission of the benchers (that's us), thrown open for your comfort and happiness, to be by you enjoyed from the hour of 6 P. M. until dusk every evening; and so they shall remain every evening, Mondays and Saturdays excepted, until the end of August, a period of about 16 weeks, more or less; and this, for you, shall be in the nature of a 'long vacation.'"
And so it happens that the lawyers are to share their "long vacation" with their small neighbors.

St. Louis Boxers.

Chicago Chronicle.
In the last analysis there appears to be very little difference between the "Boxers" of Pekin and those of St. Louis. If there be any advantage it is on the side of the Celestial thug, who fights in the open instead of planting dynamite bombs and then running away.

Climatic Conditions in China.

Leslie's Weekly.
The Summers in North China are dry and hot. Then comes a short period of torrential rains, and then a long, dry Fall and Winter. Frost will come about the middle of October, and the last of November the river will freeze up, to stay closed until the middle of February, though often till a month later. There is almost no snow during the entire Winter—two or three little flurries, but never enough to cover the ground. The cold is comparatively steady, without the incessant freeze and thaw that we have in parts of this country.

PARTS

The most interesting part of all is when a fellow parts with his money. There is an old saying, "The Phool and his munny are soon parted"; that is still true in some parts, though all the dollars nowadays are equipped with "hand holds" on the edges. We see a considerable parting, but we always do our part toward leaving no parting string. If you like style and comfort in a Summer suit and are willing to part with $11.85

And receive in exchange a high class this season $15 or $16 Suit of Clothes, call here Monday and see what we are parting with. All the entirely new fabrics are shown in these suits, fashioned and made up for Summer wear. The first glance will tell you their real value, and a try-on will convince you that parting with dollars for such values as these is not so bad after all.
