

A LAUGHING SONG

When the green woods laugh with the voice of And the dimpling streams run laughing by; When the air does laugh with our merry wit and the green bill laughs with the noise of it; When the meadows laugh with lively green And the grashopper laughs in the lively scene; When Mary, and Susan, and Emily. With their sweet round mouths sing "Ha, ha,

When the painted birds laugh in the shade Where our table with cherries and nuts I spread:
Come live, and be merry, and join with me
To sing the sweet chorus of "Ha, ha, he!" -William Blake

AN OLD FRIEND BACK

Cosslpy Chat With Mrs. Wetzell, of Salt Lake City, Who Is Here for the Summer.

Mrs. W. A. Wetzell, of Salt Lake City. who, during her long residence in Portland, endeared herself to so large a circle of friends, has just arrived in this city for a Summer visit to her father and brother. It is needless to say, she is as brimful of musical enthusiasm as of yore, and has many interesting incidents to relate concerning her life in Salt Lake

"You would be surprised to know how udvanced the Mormons are in musical cul-ture," she said, with one of her old-time bright smiles. "They lay great stress bright smiles. "They lay great stress upon the musical education of their children. The wonderful chorus of 500 welltrained voices, once heard in the Taber-nacle on Sunday afternoon, cannot be a well-known Portland teacher, as in the forgotten. All the singers are good readers, and they give the choruses from the great oratories and other masterpieces without a sheet of music among them. And the audience that is there to hear them never numbers less than 6000. The family of Brigham Young is essentially musical, as you may guess from the wellknown and gifted Bicknell Young. Active in Club Matters.

"Salt Lake City is a great club town, the women being specially active in club matters. They have a beautiful club- is Jane Vance. She expects to return to house all their own, the Gentile and Morgreatest harmony in literary functions of this sort. Then there is a very successful woman's musical club, the Euterpe, which meets once a month. They have byterian church Sunday school. Mr. Jordan is a teacher in the High School, and dan is a teacher in the High School, and has been gained partly mon women working together in the is particularly enjoyable, and the friend-musical experience has been gained partly ships formed there I have never seen in Marietta. O., where he was in charge equaled. Their musical programmes are of the leading choir. taken from Mr. Mathews' magazine, Music, and are devoted to one composer each evening. I sung an aria for them, I remember, on their Beethoven evening.

"The Orpheus Club (to which my husband belongs) is a large giee club, composed entirely of men whose voices are in good training. In addition to their regular meetings for practice twice a week, and musicales, they give four con-certs each season, introducing foreign

"As for myself, so far as teaching is concerned, I am doing better than ever before. But I have given up choir-di-recting; it is too hard work. You remember Mr. Prescott, by the way, who used organist in Church? Well, he now holds an excellent position in Washington, D. C. Dur-ing my three months' visit there I sang a good deal for him, and was offered the position of soprano solo-ist there last Pall, and again this year.

Will Live at Salt Lake. "I was also invited to a regular place in the Cathedral cheir, and only yesterday I received a letter from them repeating the offer. I should love dearly to live in Washington, but it is out of the question on account of my recent sufferings from rheumatism. My doctor tells me that I would be a cripple for life if I should attempt it. So for the future I expect always to make Salt Lake my home. I shall go back there the first of September after spending a month in our cottage at Clatsop Beach, near Locksley Hall.

"Three weeks ago," chatted on Mrs.

Wetzell, "I attended the big musical convention in Springfield, Ill. The features that I enjoyed most were the singing of Bicknell Young, who, though his voice is not much, is such an artist; and the plane rork of Emil Liebling, who is a great teacher; his pupils, in fact, play better than he does himself. Wagner, the 'cellist, did delightful work; and Mrs. Trimble, the high soprano, sang so daintily, 'Buy My Lavender.' Gound's 'Queen of Sheba' aria was beautifully done by Ada Sheffield." And then Mrs. Wetzell gosalped on about Portland folks whom she ad encountered in her journeyings; of Miss Frances Jones, who is now organist in one of the suburban churches of Brooklyn, N. Y., and who, she stoutly averred, is not, after all, going to marry that young violinist that popular report had her engaged to. Of Miss Henrietta Hamilton, formerly of this city, now of Scattle, who, with herself, was the guest of honor at a musicale given recently at Salt Lake City by Le Grande Young, a brother of Brigham Young. Of Miss Jessie Goddard, who is teaching French in Salt Lake City. Of Harold Butler, whom she saw every other night during the season in New York last ter; since he sang the bass roles on alternate nights in all the Wagnerian operas of the Castle Square Opera Company. He is very popular with the New York public, and regarded as a very promising singer. He is only about 24 years of age as yet, and will perhaps sing with Grau next season.

The Australian comedy company will the Metropolitan tonight, with the farewell presentation of "His Night Out." which was placed on the boards Thursday night, July 26.

LOCAL MUSICAL HAPPENINGS.

Glennings of News Gathered From the Home Field.

Mrs. Shannah Cumming Jones has had to give up her contemplated trip to this city on account of the illness of her three-months old baby, on whose account she fears so long a journey. Mrs. Jones has been offered the high soprano roles with Grau next year; it is needless to say that she finds it hard to refuse so brilliant an opportunity as this; but refuse it she will. Her ambition iles in the direction of wagnerian opera, and ner charming stage presence, as well as her remarkable guit of voice, is certainly in her favor. But this new phase in her career means uncompromisingly nard ork, and this she is not ready t dertake just at present. She Icels that mire her the less for this decision?

It is always pleasant to record the success of a Portland singer, especially present case. Mrs. H. R. Alden, of this city, has just returned to Portland for the Summer, after a brilliant season in New York, whither she went a year ago. She succeeded in obtaining an engage-ment with no less an organization than the Castle-Square Opera Company, with whom she sang minor parts in "The Chimes of Normandy," "Mascot," etc. Her work was of such a high order that she was re-engaged for the coming sea-son. Naturally she feels very much encouraged, and will study many new roles for next season's work. Her stage

PALOMA SCHRAMM REDIVIVUS. What a San Francisco Critic Says

About Her. Paloma Schramm, the child-planist, has been giving a series of recitals in San Francisco. So much interest was abown in her by Portland people, on her visit to this city a year or two ago, that the following recent comment by a San Franelsco critic will be read with interest: "In passing an opinon on a youthful artist, the critic is handicapped by a certain leniency which arises from two particular sources. The first is the fact that it is rather cruel to apply the sharp knife of adverse criticism to a child who requires naught but encouragement, and the second is the weakness of the public in regard to pretty children-and, as mis fortune will have it, nearly all professional children are pretty. So this leniency comes into display when I speak of Paloma Schramm's playing this year. When one watches carefully the child's playing we are first of all struck by the remarkable memory she possesses. It is indeed won-derful to think that a child should be able to memorine compositions of such tremendous intricacles as those which Pa-loma chooses for her programme. Why, even adults have to study incessantly to keep track of the ine and outs of classical plano music. Another marvelous accomplishment of the little artist's is her power of improvisation. To be able to improvise upon any theme handed haphazard from the sudience is the acme of genius, and the wonder of it all cannot be denied. It is within these two virtues that Paloma's real talent lies. In interpretation she gives us a fair idea of what she could accomplish had she the necessary develpoment of mind and muscles, but as yet she is handicapped by the weakness childhood. It will be plainly noticed that her fingers are often too weak to procomplete its two weeks' engagement at distinct runs, nor are her chords sufficlently vigorous to meet the demands of the composer, and because of this physical incompleteness we cannot tell the ex-tent of the child's interpretative ability.

"We arrive here, then, at a shortcom

her concert, as far as instruction is con-cerned, becomes valueless. In fact, the whole concentrates itself upon an exhibition of a young girl who is extraordinarily talented in one particular branch. I say purposely in one branch, for I consider pions-playing only-her compositions are Taken altogether, the Australian compiona-playing only-her compositions as per mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed to very fair houses during the mind has not yet acquired that managed the mind has not yet acquired the mind has not yet acquired that managed the mind has not yet acquired the mind has not yet and it has played to very fair houses during its Portland engagement. Making its advent here at the close of the regular season, and at a time when so many people are absent from the city, will account for an attendance which would count for an attendance which would be a select the composition of the select the composition of the compliation of the compliance of improvisations upon her own themes which must be weak because of her inability to grasp deep problems. This reminds me of a similar case—Mozart. He, too, composed in his early childhood, and notwithstanding assertions to the con-trary, it has been definitely proved that all his early compositions were not worthy to preserve. And he certainly was regarded as an extraordinary genius in his time. I think it is a mistake to have Paloma Schramm continue to give concerts just at present; but let her rest, enjoy the pleasures of childhood, complete her studies and then she will gradually develop into one of the great genil of the age, which otherwise is made impossible by reason of the strain put upon her. 1 am informed that the child likes to give concerts, but it is not a question of liking -it is a question of preserving her health, PARAGRAPHIC PUN.

Praise for Frawley. If we are not generous let us be just and confess that Manager T. Daniel Frawley's most creditable production of "The Great Ruby," at the Grand, is entitled to more than the customary amount of praise and consideration. It is not a little bit too much to say that it is far and away the most meritorious produc-tion of its class we have ever seen here. Please notice, gentlemen of the daily press, that Manager Frawley did the work and is entitled to the credit for it. Max Heinrich and his daughter, Miss Julia Heinrich, have been giving very successful song recitals the last few months. The Boston critics comment upon their work as constantly improving. Miss Heinrich, in particular, they say, has made conspicuous strides forward in her art since she last sang in Boston; her voice has grown in maturity and richness, her style is more posed and confident. She has now a full, warm, smooth and sympathetic contralto voice

Among the noticeable improvements at Seaside is the beautiful Nurses' Cottage, which Bishop Morris has been erecting for the trained nurses of the Good Samaritan Hospital, it is in "Clarsop Grove," only a few blocks from the postoffice. Six of the nurses came down this week, and are soon to be followed by others.

AT NEWPORT.

Throngs of People Daily Visit the Yaquina Bay Resort.

NEWPORT, Or., July 28-More people have arrived the past week than any week heretofore, and the weather has been perfect. About 150 people came on the Sunday excursion, and some of them remained for the regular train, Monday morning. The Salvation Army has arrived and holds meetings every evening, near the boat landing. More campers are here, and tents have sprung up like mushrooms, till the woods are full of them. A very pleasant dancing party was given last Saturday evening, and about 100 people were present. An orchestrawas to arrive from Toledo, but, through some mistake, only a part of it came. The dance was given just the same, and an enjoyable time was had. Another will be given tonight, and many people are expected from the Valley; a good or-chestra will be in attendance. The dances this season are being given in the operahouse, which has been repaired and the floor of which has been put in very good

The steamer that runs from Yaquina to Newport is now accompanied by a tug ach trip, as the steamer people are Blowed to carry only 100 passengers on their craft. By taking a tug with them, they can handle the large crowds that are arriving daily. Last Sunday was Drummers' day, and nearly all of the travelling men from Portland that stay over Sunday in Albany came to the bay and made this lively lively.
