

MOUNTAIN THE GOLD

High Values Obtained From Rock and Sand in Idaho.

OVER $10,000 IN NINETY HOURS

Father and Four Sons Making Fortune on a Peak Where Thunder is Continually Rolling.

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 25.—There arrived in this city last evening Williams Caswell and wife, A. B., C. R., L. G., D. G. Caswell, all from Thunder Mountain, being the father, mother and four sons. These people are the owners of the famous Thunder Mountain placer and quartz mines, in the southern part of Idaho County. This deposit is perhaps the most peculiar in the world.

Thunder Mountain is about 500 feet high, a conical peak of red sandstone, and every inch of it, so far as we were able to determine, is pay. It was not found in the regular way of prospecting, but rather by accident. My brother and I had been out prospecting in the section about the south fork of the Salmon River all of the summer of 1902, and we found many things that interested us, including some small veins of pay rock, as well as of placers.

Francis Murphy speaks at the Grace Methodist Church this morning, and at the Taylor Street Church tonight. Every one interested in seeing men avoid strong drink as a weak indulgence has heard of Francis Murphy.

Thunder Mountain is so named because there seems to generate there continuous thunder. To me it seemed that if there was a storm within a radius of hundreds of miles, the thunders would echo on this mountain. It is a point between Monumental and Marble Creeks, and the divide that makes up its foothills runs about north and south.
