

The Girl in the Teddy Hat.
Who do we see by the fountain now,
Where the park winds whisper mild,
With headgear sloping down on her brow,
And hair that will be wild?
She's the girl in the Western dark-eyed girl.
Where the grace of the prairie mat,
And she is the Western dark-eyed girl.
The girl in the Teddy hat.

The whistlers, on their morning spin,
Circle the lake and stars
At the hasty and the jolly pit
That pleases the silky hair;
And they wish they knew the picture pearl
Under the broad-brimmed hat.
For she is the Western dark-eyed girl—
The girl in the Teddy hat.

What care she for the Paris hints
And the world's ways and glances,
And the dreams of ferns and grass?
What care she for the fashion whirl
And the styles of this and that?
When she is the Western dark-eyed girl—
The girl in the Teddy hat.

Then burst for the Western dark-eyed girls,
And the style of but she'll wear,
And the fountain winds that come and kiss
The strands of her raven hair,
And the flowers that have a curl
From the fields of the silver plait.
Hurrah for the Western dark-eyed girl—
The girl in the Teddy hat.

AT HOME OF THE BRIDE

Lawrence-Crossley Wedding Event of a Week Mostly Given Up to Carnival Festivities.

The wedding of Miss Edna Mae Crossley and Mr. William Charlton Lawrence, which was announced last Sunday, proved a quiet but elegant affair. The marriage was celebrated at the home of the bride, 220 East Ash street, Wednesday evening, September 12, at 6 o'clock. The parlors were beautifully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of white flowers, supplemented by palms and sweet peas. The bridal party stood under a canopy of white and white dahlias, and Dr. Edgar P. Hill performed the marriage ceremony, to the accompaniment of soft music. Only relatives were present. There was a dainty wedding supper served, and the newly wedded couple took their immediate departure for California. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence will be at home to their friends after October 1 at 32 Marshall street. There were no cards. Invitations are out for another Wednesday wedding, that of Miss Shortell and Mr. Van Schuyver, and which will occur this week at 8:30 in the evening. Trinity Church will be the scene of the marriage ceremony.

Coming Event.

Among other interesting events of the week to come, the most important, perhaps, is the reception to be given tomorrow (Monday) night at the residence of Hon. and Mrs. Solomon Rosenblatt, in honor of the World's Fair installation, which takes place Friday in the Synagogue.

The reception given by Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Blackburn Tuesday evening was largely attended, and was, in all respects, a most enjoyable affair.

Mr. Archer chaperoned a merry trolley party Tuesday night, and there were several small boating parties during the week, although for the most part, the Carnival and its attractions claimed the attention of the younger members of society. The out-of-town visitors, who crowded the streets in the vicinity of the Street Fair, and who overflowed the pavilions promenades, "Midway" and the music stand at that place of amusement, during the first week of its existence, gave place in the second. Portland people, who really seemed, toward the end, to become gradually imbued with something very nearly akin to a carnival spirit.

Last Monday the Street Fair was given over to the enrichment of the Good Samaritan Hospital, the proceeds going to swell the contents of the coffers of that charitable institution. Society was out in force, to show the appreciation of the benevolence of the people, who were generous in its patronage. The trained nurses from the hospital, in their white caps and aprons, added a charming feature to the scene, and proved efficient flower-girls.

Efficient Conduitors.

Mr. Fred Glime, Dr. Harry McKay and Clarence Keen rendered invaluable service to the cause and excited the admiration, if not the envy, of all who saw and heard. Friday afternoon Mr. Bowens royally entertained royalty at the Portland, when the Queen of the Carnival and her maid of honor were invited to his boudoir.

Whether it is because the citizens of Portland are too democratic or not, they certainly have not seemed enthusiastic or eager to embrace their opportunity to pay homage to royalty.

There are several important social events booked for the last of the month. The new clubhouse of the Multnomah Athletic Club will be formally opened on the 25th instant, a flourish of trumpets and a grand reception, and various dancing parties are in early contemplation.
