

SOCIETY

BULL IN SOCIAL FIELD

The McIntosh Tea-Cyrene de Bergerac at the Woman's Club-Greek Letter Society's Evening.

"This town, socially speaking, is dead," remarked a man who is of the select inner circle, in a recent burst of confidence. But he is mistaken. Portland society people are only waiting till the season is further advanced before they dazzle their less fortunate neighbors with the unworldly splendor of balls and dinners and novel entertainments. Meantime there is a quiet affair now and then, and once in a while a function that is altogether elegant and enjoyable that everybody wishes it could be often repeated. In this latter category must be placed the delightful tea which Mrs. Robert McIntosh gave at her home on Williams street Wednesday afternoon, and which was undoubtedly the event of the week from a social point of view. The house was tastefully and elaborately decorated. The hall, where, in an alcove, the musicians were stationed, was beautiful with Oregon grape and autumn leaves. Pink and white carnations diffused a delicate fragrance in the parlors, and in the dining-room violets dominated the color scheme. There were violets everywhere, on the table, on the sideboard, in vases and baskets and great bowls of cut-glass. The shades on the chandeliers were purple, the soft, rich purple of the flowers, and served to enhance the exquisite daintiness of the rare china brought over from Scotland.

The guests were: Mrs. A. Delaney, Mrs. K. Borthwick, Mrs. J. O. Gibson, Mrs. A. Garin, Mrs. R. M. Wilbur, Mrs. J. G. Muckle, Mrs. A. Demerby, Mrs. H. M. Grant, Mrs. E. Mosman, Mrs. Strang, Mrs. F. F. Haradon, Mrs. Britz, Mrs. E. Vandusen, Mrs. E. Brose, Mrs. W. B. Struble, Mrs. T. M. Stevens, Mrs. M. Henderson, Mrs. W. A. Hathaway, Mrs. C. Mastick, Mrs. R. Loller, Mrs. J. A. Martin, Mrs. F. C. Hageman, Mrs. J. W. Munro, Mrs. B. Fritz and Mrs. M. Haradon. The hostess was most becomingly gowned, and there was nothing lacking that could in any way contribute to the pleasure of the occasion.

Count Wackmeister.

Another pleasant but less formal affair was the evening at Mrs. J. E. Wright's Wednesday, when Count Axel Wackmeister was the guest of honor. There was music, of course, there were also the usual amiable and obliging and it is impossible to tire of his exquisite playing. The members and guests of the Woman's Club had an opportunity to listen to his rendition on the piano of the national hymn of Sweden, and other interesting selections. Friday afternoon, Mrs. Walter Reed was the hostess, and when she was enthusiastically escorted to her room, she was wearing a little jolly that had the sweetness of singing birds and rippling waters running through it.

Cyrene de Bergerac.

It was French afternoon at the club, and Mrs. Bauer and the members of her department, dressed the tour to the hero at Rostand's great play. The program, elsewhere reported, was preceded by charmingly informal reception, with cakes and chocolate and French provence.

Delta, Iota Chi.

The Eta Chapter of the Delta Iota Chi, in other words the High School Girls of the Greek Letter Society, gave a party at Parsons Hall Friday night. There was music and dancing. The hall was appropriately decorated with facsimiles of the society plant. The patronesses were Mrs. F. M. Batcher, Mrs. W. H. Bradford, Mrs. J. L. DeBevoise, Mrs. C. J. Groat, Mrs. J. F. Shaw and Mrs. D. M. Watson. The chapter consists of the following: Miss May Bachelder, Miss L. Bradford, Miss Florence E. Brandt, Miss Louise Cooper, Miss Beate M. DeBevoise, Miss Laura G. Dunne, Miss Beate J. Groat, Miss Jennie M. Owen, Miss Ethel E. Pike, Miss Edna A. Pike, Miss Ethel M. Shaw, Miss Catherine E. Struble, Miss Grace E. Watkins and Miss Delta M. Watson.

There was also a delightful party at Foreman's Hall, the same of evening, given by Miss Nina Larowe, the second of a series that will continue throughout the winter, and which was well attended.

AGATHA.

Mrs. J. C. Curry gave an informal reception one afternoon last week for Miss Dodson, who has recently returned from an extended trip abroad.

exchange was made upon the mutual application of both officers.

Captain Charles B. Schofield, formerly second lieutenant of E. Troop, Fourth Cavalry, then stationed here, has been appointed Quartermaster of the regular army. Captain Schofield has been stationed at Fort Myer, Va., but has now been ordered to Washington.

The reception given at Mrs. Dougherty's Friday last was well attended by the ladies of the post and some from Portland. There has been so little social gaiety since the departure of the Fourteenth that it is a pleasure to all to see a return again to the brighter side of army life.

The gathering at the Adjutant-General's office Thursday evening to hear the election returns, was a large one, great interest being shown by all in the returns, which were read aloud by Colonel W. V. Richards, until the line was closed at 12. Delightful refreshments were served by Mrs. Richards in the General's office, which had been daintily decorated for the occasion with pink and white cosmos.

A charming piano recital was given at Mrs. J. W. Jacobs' home, Wednesday evening, by Mrs. Beatrice Barlow-Dierke. The programme was composed of the following pieces:

"Caravan".....Shumann
"Nocturne".....Chopin
"Campanella".....List-Paganini
"Cannhäuser Overture".....Wagner-List
"Path in Spring".....Schubert
"Kiss Waltz".....Strauss-Rosenthal
And was rendered with great strength and character, and called forth repeated applause from her enthusiastic audience.
