GREAT GROWTH OF TRADE

RECENT COMMERCIAL EXPANSION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Foreign Commerce Has Grown by Leaps and Bounds-Exports to Island Possessions.

European nations did not need to wait billion and a half steel trust before taking alarm at the American cam-fore taking alarm at the American cam-paign for the commercial conquest of the world, says the San Francisco Call.

J. Pierpont Morgan's great combination has brought it home to them vividly, but commercial America has been expanding ever since territorial expansion was an accomplished fact. It expanded $338,874. 884 in foreign commerce in 1800 over 180, the year before the war. It has expanded in the first eight months of the present year $256,500,200 over the first eight months of 1997. In iron and steel exports alon ansion in 1900 over 1897 has been b, and it may almost double these maxim that "trade follows the fing" maxim that 'trade follows the has been illustrated lately. Spain is suffering from great business depression. She is on the verge of an industrial crists. Every branch of her trade is suffering from the loss of her colonies. Her imports to Cuba have shrunk from $186.000.000 to $86,000.000; to Porto Rico from the memory to $17,000.000 to the Philippines. $44,000,000 to $17,000,000, to the Philippines from 49,000,000 to $27,000,000. Her total loss in trade through the passing of her last colonial possessions is $122,000,000 a

Now look at the American picture. During the three years which have passed since the breaking out of the war with Spain the foreign trade of the country has grown by leaps and bounds. Ameri-can goods are making their way into every market of the world in increasing quantities, but most remarkable of all has een the development of the commerce between this country and the islands over which the sovereignty of the United States was extended as a result of the Spanish War. The maxim that "trade follows the flag" has never received a more striking verification. Not only have the exports of breadstuffs, mest products, cotton, petroleum and other products which are exported in their natural state, or nearly so, largely increased, but there has been a still more striking increase in the export of nanufactured goods, such as machinery f all kinds, textiles, and boots and Until within the last few years exports of American manufactured goods exports or american manufactures goods have been made up largely of what were termed "Yankee notions." No the coun-try is exporting everything, from steel bridges to be erected in Egypt or India, and locomotives to be run in Siberia or Africa, to typewriters, cash registers, pocket knives, and pins and needles., For the fiscal year which ended June 20, 1857—the last complete fiscal year before the Spanish War—the exports of merchandise of all kinds, including silver bullion, amounted in value to $1,112.63.562. For the fiscal year ended June 20, 1900 the last complete fiscal year-the total reached the amount of $1,450,896,648. This rate is still keeping up, and for the eight months of the present fiscal year the total exports to foreign countries foot up $1,015,-195,485, against but $725,085,145 for the same period in 1857, and this notwithstanding the fact that the commerce between the United States and Hawaii and between the United States and Porto Rico is no longer considered foreign commerce and included as such in the statistics is not included as such in the statistics of the Treasury Department. Another factor that has tended to reduce the figures for the present year below what they would otherwise have been is the unsettled condition of affairs in China. Exports to the Chinese Empire were increasing very rapidly when the Boxer troubles broke out there last year, but for the first eight months of this year they are pearly $5,000,000 less than for

for the first eight months of this year they are nearly $5,000,000 less than for the same period last year.

If a comparison between the present year and 1857 is to be made on a fair basis the exports to Hawali and Porto Rico must be added to the foreign com-merce, and this would bring the figures for the first eight months of the present fiscal year up to $1,031.488,442, or a gain of $296.404,226 over the same months in Europe Our Best Customer. Although there has been a greater pro Although there has been a greater pro-portionate increase in exports to other parts of the world, Europe still continues to be the best customer of the United States, inking in 1800 goods to the value of Blook 212 are now to the colors of $1.080,167,312, against $813,380,332 in 1897.

In the same period experts to Asia have increased from $39,58,755 to $44,312,964, while in experts to Oceanica the increase has been from $22,652,733 to $43,390,927, and the exports to Africa have increased from $16.953.127 to $19.469.109. The increase in exports to South America has not been so satisfactory, the growth being from $32,satisfactory, the growth being from $32,-769,483 in 1897 to $38,945,721 in 1990. The exports to other countries in North America 1897 were $124,963,773, and in 1900 $187 .-

shown by the remarkable increases in ex-morts to Cuba, the Philippine Islands, Hato Cuba in 1887 amounted to but $8,259,776, while in 1900 they had grown to $36,513,613. The increase in the exports to the Philip-

Some of these goods are, of course, bought by Americans in the islands, but these Americans bring them to the notice of the natives. It has been said that every American soldier in the insular possessions of the United States is a commercial agent, for the natives see the kind of things he uses, and want similar goods for themselves.

The exports to Islands.

The exports to Islands.

The exports to the islands under the control of the United States embrace a wide range of articles. Cuba took, in 1890, and the appreciation of American typewriters in foreign countries is shown by the increase in exports from $1.453,117 that many classes of machinery stated separately in 1890 were included under the heading "all other machinery" in 187, the increase under this latter heading is from $19,711,855 to $21,913,202.

The exports of steel rails, which were largely imported into the United States from England until a comparatively short their value was $2,482,208, and in 1900, $2,218,144. Of this total, British North America, $1,420,625. Europe took rails to Pootto Rico were breadstuffs to the value of $2,824,409.

While the exports of American goods have shown such large increases all along the province of the power shown such large increases all along the power increase of machinery is the machinery. In 1897, the increase of machinery is 1897, the increase of machinery is 1897, the increase of machinery is 1897, the increase of section of the United States from England until a comparatively short the value of $2,823, and in 1900.

Section of the United States is a commercial angent, for the united States from England until a comparatively short the increase of machinery is the machinery. In 1897, the increase of machinery is the machinery. In 1897, the increase of machinery is the machinery. In 1897, the increase of machinery is the machinery. In 1897, the increase of machinery is the machinery in 1897, the increase of machinery is the machinery. In 1897, the increase of machinery is the machinery in 1897, the increase r $1,011,204. The largest item in Hawail's whicky and $146 gallons of rye wants. Forto files communed has galons of Bou-bon and file galons of ry. There are heavier drinkers of whisky in the Pacific than in the West Indio, for Hawaii took 22.436 gallons of Bourbon and 722 gallons of rye, while the Philippines took 33,319 gallone of Bourbon and 311 gallons of rye.

The inhabitants of all the islands are rapidly adopting American clothing and American boots and shoes. As all of them have warm climates, comparatively few woolen goods are used, and the largest increases are shown in cottons. In 1897 Cuba bought cotton goods in the United States to the value of only $67,452, while in 1990 to the value of only $67,452, while in 1890 she bought cottons to the value of $612,552. Porto Rico bought to the value of $12,052 in 1857, and $312,455 in 1890. The exports of cottons to Hawali and the Philippine Islands in 1857 were so small that they were not stated separately in the Treasury statistics. In 1890 the exports to Hawali had grown to $572,551, and those to the Philippines to $29,744. The total exports of boots and shoes in 1857 were so ports of boots and shoes in 1897 were so small that they were not given by coun-tries at all, and very few went to any of the islands. In 1990, the exports to Cubs were $248,937, to Porto Rico $25,759, to Hawere $28,837, to Porto Rico $25,788, to Ha-wall $191,884 and to the Philippines $6510. Exporters of almost every article pro-duced or manufactured in the United States are beginning to find markets for their goods in these islands, and these markets will continually expand as Amer-ican goods come to be better known and the concuming power of the inhabitants grows with their increase in prosperity under just and stable governments. While the percentages of increase have been larger in the experts to the islands now under the supereignty of the United States, the largest increases in value have taken place in exports to countries hav-ing better developed markets, and in some lines these increases have been phe-

American agricultural machinery has long been recognized as leading the world, and yet in 1897 the total exports under this heading amounted to but $5.240,686, while in 1900 they had grown to $16.094.886. The exports of farm machinery and tools to the United Kingdom doubled between 1897 and 1900, to France and Ger many they doubled, and to British North America more than quadrupled. The greatest increase, however, was to that great agricultural country of South America-Argentina-which in 1897 bought to the value of $415,312 and in 1900 to the value of $1,805,744.

Miscellaneous Exports. The exports of breadstuffs to all the world increased from $197,877,219 in 1887 to $282,734,025 in 1900. The most marked increase under this heading was in the exports of wheat flour to China and Japan. In 1897 China took flour to the value of $72,100, while in 1900 the total exports to that country, including what went through Hong Kong, amounted to $4.502,-081. Japan took so little in 1897 that it was not stated separately, but in 1900 she paid $1,554,739 for American flour. The exports of provisions, including meats and dairy products, did not increase to the same extent as breadstuffs, but they grew from a value of $137,128,084 in 1887, to $184,431,718 in 1890. The exports of mineral oils, crude and refined, grew from a value of $62.635,067 in 1897, to $75,-511,211 in 1900. The increase in the value of wood and manufactures of wood was from $39,524,800 in 1897 to $50,594,819 in 1900. In the same time the value of the exports of raw cotton increased from $220,-890.971 to $241.832.737, and of manufactures of cotton from $21.037.678 to $23.980,001.

The increase in the value of copper and manufactures of copper was from $31,-621,125 to $57,851,707, and in coal from $11,008,643 to $19,502,412. British North America still continues to be the larges foreign consumer of United States coal, taking it to the value of $15,124,850 in 1900. In the last few years, however, the codi miners of the United States have begun to find a market in Europe, the exports to France, for instance, having increased from $2085 in 1897 to $144,129 in 1990, while Germany, Italy and other European coun tries took increasing quantities, and a few cargoes went to England, a veritable carrying of coals to Newcastle. The value of the exports of leather and manufactures of leather in the period un-der consideration increased from $19.161,-446 to $27,288,308. Under this heading the increase in the value of boot and shoe exports was from $1,708,224 in 1887 to $4,274,-174. This was in part due to the successful efforts which American manufacturers have been making for a few years to introduce their boots and shoes into European markets, and the sales to the thited kingdom last year amounted to $250,267. The largest foreign markets for American shoes, however, is in British Australia, which took goods to the value of $1,174,497 in 1900. United Kingdom last year amounted to

Iron and Steel Trade

One of the most interesting features of F A the present commercial expansion of the United States is the large growth in the exports of iron and steel and goods made of these metals. Aside from the many articles containing considerable iron and steel, but classified under other headings, such as agricultural implements, scientific. such as agricultural implements, scientific implements, steamers and sailing vessels sold to foreigners and many of the arti cles classed as manufactures of wood, the value of fron and steel exports, not in-cluding ore, increased from $57,497,895 to That trade has followed the flag is $121,858,344. These exports go to every country on the face of the globe and in-clude everything from locomotives to cambric needles. Under the head of steam engines there were exported in 1897 two fire engines, valued at $6790; $38 locomotives, valued at The increase in the exports to the Philippines was in still greater proportion. Before the islands were acquired by the United States American goods were almost unknown—the foral value of the exports to the islands being but $94,597 in 1857. The total in 1900 had risen to $2,694, 448. The exports to Hawali grew from $4,890,675 in 1857 to $13,505,185 in 1900, and those to Ports Rice increased from $1,885, and boilers and parts of engines, valued at $5,502,403 in 1857. The total in 1900 had risen to $2,694, 448. The exports to Hawali grew from $4,890,675 in 1857 to $13,505,185 in 1900, and those to Ports Rice increased from $1,885, and boilers and parts of engines to the value of $1,755,189. The exports of electrical machinery were not separately stated in 1857 to $4,040,431 in 1900. These figures do not include supplies sent to these islands for the United States authorities in any way. They are the purely commercial exports which pairs through the custom-houses.

others of like import, to be forwarded to tisneral MacArthur. He realy came back to thei War Departure t a twick and has been divulged to the public. He begs to have free transpertation furnished to the ladies in Wisconsin, and the other letterwriters, so that they may come to Manila and see for themselves what manner of town it is, and what is going on there. They have been misled as to the facts. They have been misled as to the facts, he thinks, and are very imperfectly in formed besides about the morals of Oriental seaports. He wants them to investigate a few of the Asiatic ports, that they may be the better able to appreciate what has been accomplished in Manila. As to the city, he believes that not withstanding conditions of special difficulty which were a consequence of its unsettled state, and its being the head-quarters of an army of $6.00 men, "no city in America or Europe, certainly none in Asia, can vie with it today in the good order and morality which have resulted from the practical measures adopted." That is putting it strong; yet General MacArthur seems to have his facts well in hand. He denies specifically that he has licensed or encourage houses of prostitution; that prostitutes are licensed, or even permitted to land in the Philippines, Many of them, he says, have been deeven permitted to land in the Philippines, Many of them, he says, have been de-ported from the islands. "Every effort," he writes, "is made to maintain a high standard of true manhood in the young soldier, and return him to his country, when his service is over, a credit to the hard school from which he was grad-uated."

iated."
It would be a miracle if there had not been lapses in morals and deportment in Manila during the last three years, but the stories of the drunkenness and immorality prevailing there which at one time were common in our newspapers probably grew in the telling, while as for present conditions General MacArthur's report is convincing in its reassurances.
