CHICAGO, June 1 .- Dr. A. M. Unger on trial for alleged conspiracy to swindle various insurance companies which had written policies on the life of Marie Defenbach, now deceased, was admitted to ball today in the sum of $15,000. Thus he gains his liberty for the first time since his trial began. The prosecution announced today that an attachment would be issued for Deputy Coroner J. C. Weickler, who conducted the inquest on Miss Defenbach's remains. Since the trial began it has developed that Weickler held the inquest without the attendance of the six jurors required by law.

Mrs. Alice Kelly, a witness for the state was called today but failed to appear. It is said she will later testify on behalf of the defense. By her it is the hope of the defense to prove that on account of jealousy over a man not yet mentioned in the trial, Miss Defenbach had threatened to kill herself with polson, gaying Defenbach's landlady.

One of today's witnesses was 'Calvin Huntsman, uncle of Miss Defenbach. He said the young woman's story that she owned a form was false. The state's alm in producing this evidence was to prove that Miss Defenbach had intended to defraud the insurance companies. Mrs, Ada Wells Culpepper testified that Miss Defen-Ada bach had a lover named Waters, and that owing to quarrels with him, the young woman had been despondent and had threatened suicide, the humble appeal of a claimant. Pensioners in every state have the serv-ices of a Congressman at their disposal whenever they feel that they are not receiving sufficient recognition at the hands of the pension office. Every member of Congress and every Senator is only too glad to take up with the department at Washington the claim of any and all of his old soldier constituents. And be it generally understood, the interest of a mator or Representative in any claim counts for a hundred times more than the paid interest of an attorney. A Senator or a Representative has a standing in the department. He is "somebody," and his requests are honored and acknowledged with alacrity, if possible. An attorney, as a general thing, is a form of an intruder in the pension office. No doubt there are honest and faithful pension at-torneys, but for the most part they are the scum of the legal talent, who aim to leed unthinking veterans who are under the impression that in employing an attorney their clafms will receive prompt and favorable action. This is decidedly not the case. A request flied by an attorney brings forth exactly the same reply that would be given to the claimant, if he made his own filing. The only difference is that the attorney exacts a fee of greator less proportion for filing the papers, and this fee comes out of the pensioner's pocket. It is a fee actually thrown away. This whole question was recently agithe body.
