gowned audience that has graced Temple Beth Israel the wedding ceremony of Miss Therese Steinbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph B. Steinbach, and Mr. Marion A. Hirschman, of San Francisco, took place last Monday evening.

Long before the hour arranged for the ceremony the pews in the Temple were occupied by the guests, friends and the general public. Drooping from the organ gallery were lively pink roses gathered with pink ribbon and artistically banked with white tulle, relieved by green leaves and smilax. Graceful lilies bent their snowy heads on the platform where the impressive marriage vows were to be said, and at either side of the steps leading to the platform were lovely palms,

Amid a ripple of expectation, the soft notes of the organ sounding the joyous strains of the wedding march announced the arrival of the bridal party. In stately array came the four bridesmaids gowned in pink crepe de chine and carrying plctured Gamaborough hats+Miss Florence Kohn, Miss Clementine Barman, of Colville, Wash., and Miss Hazel Hirschman and Miss Elsa Frank, of San Francisco, Then came the maid of honor, Miss Ger-trude May Steinbach, sister of the bride, gowned in dainty white embroidered chif-fon, and carrying a hat of white roses strapped with pink sibbons. The charm-ing little flower girl was Miss Mildred Ful-ler, who was dressed in pink and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Then came the bride, leaning on the arm of her father. She made a pretty pic-ture, blushing like a typical rose in June. Her wedding gown was a very beautiful one, of white tulle, and her vell was of white tulle with orange blossoms caught on the side by a diamond sunburst, the gift of the groom. She carried a prayer book, and a spray of orange blossoms. The best man, Mr. Julius Meler, and the groom and the four ushers-Mr. Julius Lang, Air, Joseph Speigle, Mr. Harry Lang and Mr. Alexander Bernstein-met the bride's party in front of the minister,

Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise.

The triumphant notes of the wedding march ceased as Dr. Wise uttered the bighest sense, and you will find that every day will bring you happiness, and you house was beautifully decorated with will look upon this hour with deepest ferns and cut flowers, the bridgi couple thankfulness to God for this precious standing under a basket of exquisite blessing vouchsafed to you alike. I would roses and maiden-hair depended from the say to our brother this woman is giving ceiling by garlands of ivy. The bride say to our brother this woman is giving to you that which is precious to her, her life, her happiness, her all. She is going and carried a shower bouquet of bridewith you to a far country. I would say to you held here each other forever. throughout your lives." The fateful words were then spoken which changed man and maid into husband and wife, and it was noticed that the bride's responses were The fateful words maid into husband and wife, and it was noticed that the bride's responses were sheetly and beautifully articulated. As Mrs. Ballard are at home to their friends the last prayer was being said the organist softly played a marriage message, Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." Then the groom gallantly kissed his bride and escorted her down the aisle to their carriage, which was driven to the Portland

Many brilliant and lovely costumes were noticed among the wedding guests. The bride's mother, Mrs. Adolph B. Steinbach, was gowned in charming pompa-dour velvet, trimmed with exquisite black lace, and her ornaments were diamonds. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Kohn, was gowned in black satin trimmed with Duchesse lace, and she wore diamonds, The groom's mother, Mrs. A. Hirschman, of San Francisco, wore lavender brocaded satin and diamonds,

The bridal reception was held in one of the large parlors of the Portland Hotel, where a gay and happy company was re-ceived by Mr. and Mrs. Hirschman, be-neath an artistic bower of stately palms. The parior was transformed into a beautiful fragrant flower garden by the skill-ful hands of Mr. H. C. Bowers. The walls were covered by a vinery of La France roses, so artistically arranged that one thought of a scene among the vine-clad nooks of quaint Britishy. From the frieze work peeped wondrous electric globes shaded by a border of roses and smilax. Fragrant La France roses and leaves gathered in rustic baskets drooped from the chandellers. The pillars seemed to have been spirited away, and in their place were entwined vines of magnificent American beauty roses, from floor to celling. Pink roses covered the floor, and the round tables seated for 70 guests were by Adolph Burkhardt, his brother. After dainty electric globes shaded by roses, and in the hallway leading to the parlor were graceful palms and jars of roses. Handsomely designed menus were placed at each plate. The corps of waiters, in new uniforms and immaculate gloves, under direction of Thomas McFadden, the head bellman, anticipated every want. It was the opinion of the guests that the elaborate floral decorations have only been equaled in New York.

Exquisitely played, joyous strains floated from the orchestra concealed by paims and roses. Dinner was announced and after the company enjoyed the elaborate and sumptuous repast, Mr. Charles Kohn was installed as toastmaster. Wit and laughter reigned, and the various toasts and responses were particularly happy ones. Cablegrams of congratulation to the happy couple were read from England, Germany and France, and also telegrams from friends in this country. The bride, with her fair hands, cut the wedding cake, and amid much merriment the ring fell to the lot of Miss Sarah Kohn, who of course was gaily hailed as the next bride. Mrs. Hirschman threw her wedding bouquet into a crowd of pretty maidens and it was skillfully caught by Miss Florence Koshland.

Mr. and Mrs. Hirschman left the city last Friday for Buffalo, N. Y., where they will visit the Exposition. They will then visit friends in New York City, and on the 15th inst, they will sail on the Kaiser Withelm for their new home, London,

In presence of the most brilliantly | Thompson. The parlor was a floral surprise, under Mr. Bowers' direction. To the right of the guests, as they entered, were grouped tall palms looking as they were in their native soil, while around the arches were vines of roses and leaves. The cornice was hidden by wild huckleberry and roses. La France and American Beauty roses were skilfully used in general effects, and the electrollers were deftly shadowed by a lattice-work of roses, ferns and smilax. Glow-worm effects were obtained on the tea table by dainty meshes of papier ferns and leaves covering tiny electric lamps. The orchestra played behind a screen of palms, smilax, ferns and roses. The gowns worn by the guests were handsome and rich in color. Those who presided at the tea table were: Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, Mrs. Walter V. Smith, Mrs. C. J. Reed and Mrs. Marion H. Insley. Delicious Roman punch was served by Miss von Bolton and Miss Dunlap, and lemonade was served by

Mrs. William Honeyman gave an elegant luncheon party on Wednesday. The handsome home was decked with a floral dis-play that brought forth many expressions of delight from the guests. The ta-ble was most artistically decorated, all in pink and green. In the center was a superb crystal bowl, filled to overflowing with pink carnations, while at each corner were silver epergnes holding graceful ornamentation of maiden's-hair fern. The menu was most paintable, and was enlivened by delightful music from a stringed orchestra. Those who enjoyed Mrs. Honeyman's hospitality were: Mrs. Walter Honeyman, Mrs. Frank Woolsey Mrs. R. R. Hoge, Mrs. A. L. Maxwell, Mrs. W. H. Dunckley, Mrs. McRae, Mrs. Hannah Robertson, Mrs. W. C. Alvord, Mrs. J. K. McCraken, Mrs. Hill, of San Francisco; Mrs. D. WEDDINGS.

Ballard-Short. A very pretty home wedding occurred on Wednesday evening, May 29, at the march ceased as Dr. Wise uttered the first words of the impressive yet simple marriage ceremony. "I would give you words of counsel," he said. "This is a serious and great event in your lives. It is an entrance into a new life of deep and earnest duties. Remember your marriage day as the greatest day. Give your mears and lives to each other, in the highest sense and you will find that every wash, played the wedding march. The roses. Wednesday, June 5, at 8:30 P. M., at the home of the bride's parents, Monta-villa, C. W. Michael and Miss Lenora Fowler were married, Rev. Ray Palmer officiating. About 40 guests were present. The wedding march was played by the bride's sister. The bride was dressed in a traveling dress and carried a beautiful bouquet of double white clematis. The bouquet was caught by Miss Mae Craft. The parlors were beautifully decorated with ivy and Virginia creeper. After the ceremony all sat down to a delicious re-past, the table literally groaning under its burden of viands and ornamentation of La France roses. Under a shower of rice, the happy couple entered the carriage and repaired to their future home, the Arcade House, 146% First street. The happy couple are followed by the best wishes of a bost of friends, Vandermost-Loomis.

Reception and Ball on Shipboard. The promised reception and ball to be given on board the big Oriental liner, Indravelli, the first week in July, has put all Portland's belies and beaux on the qui vive with expectation. The friends of the Scamen's Institute, for whose benefit it is given, are actively at work to make the affair a brilliant social success. There are indications that the young English officers of the ship are also eager to do their part, as they are having a new floor put between decks for the dancing, and will themselves attend to all the decorations in the way of flags, awnings, bunting, etc.
