

CLATSOP BEACH, Aug. 17 .- Clatsop | Beach is growing in favor yearly, and large numbers of persons now come here to spend the Summer. It has bountiful shade groves of trees overlooking the cean for miles. It has also green fields and picturesque mountains. The ride to the beach on the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad is very pleasant. It is easy to get to the beach at Seaside, and the surf-bathing is an invigorating tonic. Delightful weather has prevailed during the week, with magnificent sunrise and sunset pictures, and the rush of vacationseekers has been the largest of the sea-son. Accommodations, however, are ample to provide for all who come,

While the crowd of campers is less than last year, the number in cottages has materially increased. The transients are somewhat fewer in number than last sea-There are many Eastern visitors, and people from Eastern Oregon and Washington. The peculiarity of weather conditions is the subject of considerable comment. At Astoria the Columbia River muy be obscured with fog, and at Seaside there may be little fog, the sky may be comparatively clear, and the stars plainly discornible. The mildness of the wind at Clatsop and of the Summer climate as compared with that of other not far-distant places, is also a matter of favorable comment.

Visitors to Tillamook Head report that it is slowly but surely washing into the sea. It is a rocky sandstone formation, mixed with earth, which cracks and goes own in large slides into the ocean. Whether or not this gradual demolish-ment of the point will be confined to the outside soges, remains to be seen. The outside edges, remains to be seen. The lighthouse on the huge rock is the subject of much inquiry, and people sak how long a term, within a year, each lighthouse keeper remains on the rock, their hours of service each day, how they get on and off the rock, and other things too numerous to mention. Old-timers on the beach are ready to answer most of the questions, and from them the facts are elicited that there are four lighthouse-keepers, and three of the number are at the lighthouse at one time, one relieving the other for a vacation. The men are put off and on the rock by means of a basket which is alld along a rope on a pulley. A lighthouse tender brings sup-plies and provisions, and takes the men piles and provisions, and takes the men to and from the rock. During the night a keeper is always in attendance guarding the light. Another question often asked is, why the lighthouse was not built upon Tiliamook Head, where it would be acces-able to the mainland, instead of being placed upon the rock. It appears that the original intention of the Government was to erect the lighthouse on the point of Tillamook Head, and that the plan was abandoned because the fogs which prevail in certain times of the year envelope Tilin certain times of the year envelope Til-lamook Head half way down to the base. Tiliamook Rock, being lower down and much less obscured in foggy weather, was consequently chosen as the most de-sirable point. The top of the rock com-prises little more than a half an acre of space. It is about 1½ miles from Tilia-mook Head, and the building of the light-house under these conditions was an en-gineering feat. In Winter the rock is an extremely stormy place, and some years ago the glass was broken by a huge rock thrown up by the force of the waves. thrown up by the force of the waves

The Hotel Flavel was never run as sat-isfactorily as it is this season, Many Astoria people avail themselves of the chance to go down on the 5-20 afternoon train, stay all night and get back to business in the morning. Last Sunday there was an especially merry gatherthere was an especially merry gather-ing. The clubbouse, bowling alley and billiard tables were well patronized, and see bathing was freely indulged in. In the botel in the evening a combined musical and literary programme was given, Miss Matlock, of Portland, charmed everybody with her fine recitations. By means of the planels and grand plane some superb classical selections were rendered. Friday night about 70 young people from Astoria's first social circles came down and enjoyed, together with the regular guests of the hotel, the best hop of the season. The beautiful hotel was thrown open to the visitors, and an orchestra provided the music. The As-toria couples arrived by special steamer toria couples arrived by special steamer furnished through Manager J. L. Mitch-ell's hospitality. An excellent supper was served at midnight.

A discussion is heard regarding the piece of ground on the Seaside Farm, 30 feet square, fenced in by the Oregon Historical Society, and said to be the place where great explorers, Lewis and Clark, polled sait water from the Pacific Ocean. There is a hole in the ground walled up with rocks which is said to have been used in the process of obtaining the salt. As the story is told, the Lewis and Clark party were camped at Fort Clatsop, and their supply of salt was exhausted. Fort Clatsop was located near the Columbia River, and about 12 miles from Seaside, E. M. Grimes, who has lived on the seath for 30 years, is somewhat inclined discredit the story unless he says can be borne out by authentic history f the travels and incidents of the Lewis nd Clark journey. Mr. Grimes thinks here was an Indian fort there, and that Le says there is another one just like it the same vicinity, and that descendants the Indians, half-breeds and others,

LONG BEACH.

LONG BEACH, Aug. 10.-The past week has been the liveliest of the season. The weather has been bright and warm, Amusements have been widely indulged in A dance was given at the Portland Monday night, which was well attended as are all such events at this popular house, The instrumental music was furnished by the Long Beach Orchestra, and Miss Schacht was the planist.

There was a dance and entertainment at Long Beach Hall Wednesday evening for the benefit of the Centerville Church. Some of the biggest bonfires ever seen on the beach are now a nightly occurrence. One at Seaview, gotten up by Professor J. Adrian Epping and Jack Rolline, was surrounded by a party of at least 250 people, and was a most enjoyable af-fair. All of the wash boilers in the neigh-

The campers first located their tents on the beach proper, at the Willows, a beautiful grove near Holman's Station.

James D. Holman was the original owner of the llwaco townsite. He purchased the Elijah White donation land claim, which then gave him a tract of 840 acres. Mr. Holman laid out the North Beach townsite, where the Ladd, Henness, Kennedy, Holman and other Summer homes are located.

Long Beach Station was for a long time commonly known as Tinkers or Tinker-ville. M. H. Tinker in 1881 purchased one used in preparing a feast of several hun-dred crabs. There was plenty of music and good singing, and the party broke up five acres of land to the East Portland and good singing, and the party broke up at a late hour.
