ANXIOUS FOR A RAILROAD.

Nehalem Valley Men Encouraged by Survey Stakes. J. B. Elliott, a Nehalem homesteader, who was in the city on business yesterday, said the settlers of his Valley are delighted over the prospect of the Northern Pacific Railway building in from Scappoose. Mr. Elliott has been holding down a homestead, two miles from Pittsburg, for 22 years, and although the cross-section stakes cut the best part of his clearing in two, he is glad of the prospects of being brought nearer to the outside world. He has been hauling his poultry and dairy products through the woods and over the hills, to Klatskanie,

15 miles away, ever since 1879, and he thinks he has had a good long, lonely wait for it. One corps of surveyors, he said, was now taking measurements along the Nehalem River, 40 miles below his place, and indications point to the road being continued down the river from Pittsburg, and into Tillamook County. "With the advent of a railroad," he said, "the Nehalem country will team with new life, as some of the finest timber on the Coast is over there awaiting transportation facilities. Besides this, the locality is peculiarly fitted for stock raising and dairying, as the natural grass is very nutritious and grows almost the year around. "Most of the settlers, whose lands are to be divided by the railroad, will want pay for the right-of-way, however, as the line follows along the level bank of the river, and the valley is rather narrow at all points. We all like to see the road, but none of us can afford to deed the land for a right-of-way without being paid its full value." Were in a Railway Wreck. Jacob Deckenback and Captain Edward Martin, of the East Side, who were delegates to the G. A. R. grand encampment, held at Cleveland, O., have returned home Monday morning last, at 6:30, while the train on the Oregon Short Line was speeding along at about 50 miles an hour, a rail broke, and a wreck resulted, in which no one was seriously hurt. Captain Martin's car turned nearly across the track and tipped over at an angle of 45 degrees. He crawled out of a window, and sustained a slight bruise on the knee. Mr. Deckenback was in another part of the same car. He was considerably shaken up, receiving one severe bruise on the head, but was able to also crawl out of a window. He and Captain Martin helped several out of a car window. Rules and Exceptions. "Politeness is never wasted," remarked the man of Chesterfieldian mien. "Well, mister," answered the roughly clad, weather-beaten person, "that may be true in your part o' town. But if you was in the canal-boat business you'd know that there ain't any use whatever of sayin' 'please' to a mule."—Washington Star.
