WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—As a part of the ceremonial attention to the 105th session of the Legislature, President Roosevelt today addressed a large audience assembled in connection with the opening of the session at the State Capitol.

ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS.

The President, in an address which lasted about 45 minutes, said:

"The opening of another legislative session is always a significant event. It marks the return of a full measure of duty to the State, and the pageantry of the occasion has been enriched by the participation of respected men from every quarter of the world who have come to join in the festivities.

"The business of government is to be conducted with a sense of responsibility and with an eye to the public welfare. The Legislature is a body of representatives elected by the people for the purpose of making laws and enforcing justice. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"We are all citizens of the State of Washington, and it is our duty to support the government by paying our taxes and voting wisely. The Legislature is the organ of the people, and its actions should be guided by the best interests of the State.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have been elected by a vote of the people. They are the officers of the State, and their work is of great importance in the government of the State.

"The Legislature meets at a time when the people are engaged in a great variety of activities. The business of the country is being conducted with great energy, and the people are working hard to build a better future for themselves and their children.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives are the officers of the State, and their work is of great importance in the government of the State.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

"The people of Washington are entitled to the best possible government, and the Legislature is the organ of the people. It is the duty of the Legislature to pass laws that will benefit the people and to see that the laws are faithfully administered.

"The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives have a great deal of work to do, and they have the responsibility of guiding the business of the Legislature. They have the duty of seeing that the laws are carried out and that justice is done.

="