

TO BIND CONTRACTORS

FOURTH STREET MUST BE MAINTAINED FOR TEN YEARS.

Street Committee Will Draw Up Ironclad Agreement, to Be Backed by Bonds.

How to make a 10-year contract binding for the maintenance of Fourth street between Madison and Burnside is what is puzzling the legal lights of the street committee of the City Council, and the question took up most of the time of the meeting yesterday afternoon. A number of property-owners along the line of the proposed repairs were on hand with suggestions, and the failure heretofore of the City of Portland to enforce the conditions of maintenance bonds was pointed out as a warning.

Contractor Must Put Up Bonds.

Chairman Brough favored contracting with the company at the rate of $50 a year, and insisting upon a proper bond for its maintenance.

Before the contract is entered into a maintenance bond used in Spokane, and its good points inserted in a similar instrument to be drawn up by City Attorney Long.

Southern Pacific's Improvement.

The Southern Pacific Company will be required to make a permanent improvement on its right of way along Fourth street at the same time. A concrete bed six inches thick is to be laid on a foundation, this treated with some preservative are to be laid on this; heavy six-inch rails are to take the place of the light ones now in use, and treated blocks are to be put down between the rails and for two feet on either side.

Manager Koehler, of the company, has signified his willingness to comply with the requirements, provided the six-inch rail can be obtained in time. If these rails cannot be procured the street committee will be willing to accept the five-inch rail.

The thorough manner in which the railroad company has kept its portion of Fourth street in repair was favorably commented on by the committee, and it was suggested that it let to itself its portion of the thoroughfare would still be kept in a presentable condition but the committee, in view of the large number of visitors expected between now and 1905, desired to have Fourth street all paved in a substantial manner as possible, so the planing will have to give way to the treated wood blocks on a concrete bed. This matter will come before the City Council in the form of a resolution at its meeting Thursday next. The block between Madison and Jefferson streets will also be included in the resolution.

Other Street Matters.

The improvement of Morris street from Vancouver avenue to Union avenue was authorized, on petition of a majority of the property-owners. The distance to be graded and provided with sidewalks is 227 feet.

The Portland Trust Company's petition to have Rodney avenue graded and provided with sidewalks for a distance of 453 feet was granted, as was also the petition to have the grade of East Third street, near East Thirty-second, lowered one foot.

The petition of the Pacific Cordero Company for the privilege of raising a portion of sidewalk on North Fifteenth street one foot was placed on file for further investigation. The raised sidewalk is desired to make loading and unloading of wagons easier. The committee expects to visit the premises before deciding. A petition from the City & Suburban Railway for the privilege of erecting a waiting-room at Third and Gilliam streets was also passed for further investigation.

A proposed ordinance requiring all street-cars to stop at street crossings when required was laid on the table. It was argued that through cars to Mount Tabor, St. Johns, Sellwood, etc., would be subjected to unnecessary delay by its passage.

Ex-Governor Penney's petition to have Thirteenth street graded from its present terminus to the foot of Governor's Park was placed on file pending an investigation of the proposed road.

A petition of the Northwest Real Estate & Investment Company to have a certain section taken out of the fire limits was also filed. The boundaries mentioned are North Front, North Second, Burnside and Gilliam streets.

WEIGHTY WAR CLAIMS.

Ridiculous Demands of Persons Who Suffered From Spanish War.

Washington letter to St. Louis Republic. Four hundred and ninety-five persons, firms and corporations want $7,000,000 from the United States for damages done to their property in Cuba during the late insurrection against Spain. The last claims have been filed with the Cuban Claims Commission and an examination of them shows that most of them think the United States will pay high prices for low commodities.

The largest single one is $1,177,328.85, which was presented by a Cuban sugar company, incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. From this sum the claims run down to $500 or $800, although such small amounts are the exception, the average claim, not counting those filed on account of the disaster to the battleship Maine, being between $200,000 and $250,000.

The Cuban mule must have been a table delicacy before and during the late insurrection, judging from the value placed on him by the patriots who wish to dip their hands into Uncle Sam's pockets.

The fences separating one plantation from another must have been silver plated. The huts which the native workmen inhabited must have been furnished with Brussels carpets and mahogany bedsteads and equipped with ornate mantelpieces and porcelain bathtubs.

And the sugar cane—it was the finest quality, just ready to be harvested and marketed at a handsome profit.

But valuable as were the crops, the beasts of burden and the other adjuncts of a well-kept Cuban plantation, they were cheap compared with other things for which damages were claimed. For example, a man who was arrested during the insurrection because he could not give a satisfactory account of himself to the Spanish authorities calculates that the wear and tear on his dignity and peace of mind could not be remedied or repaired for less than $100,000.

Of course, the Spanish prisons where American suspects were lodged pending an investigation of their cases were not models of comfort and luxury, but many a respectable citizen can be found who would sleep there and keep company with a few Cuban rats and bats for less than $200 a night.

Many claims have been filed for alleged false imprisonment, and one for less than $10,000 is an exception.

There is an itemized statement of a claim filed by an American citizen who was arrested because he was suspected of being

In collusion with the insurgents outside of Havana a short time before the United States and Spain went to war. For imprisonment and refusal to hold communication with the American Consul-General, $50,000; for mental and physical suffering and indignities, $25,000; for permanent mental and physical injuries, $15,000; for defamation of character, $500; for extra expense on account of imprisonment, to obtain release, or cash expended, $1000; total, $100,000.

A man, with a name decidedly Spanish, averring that he was naturalized in the City of New York, who asks for $25,000 damages for the alleged ruin of what must have been a veritable garden of Eden in the province of Matanzas, puts down his make at $150 each, and every horse on the plantation at the same figure.

TO INCREASE FRY OUTPUT

Fish Commissioner Complains of Inadequate Money for Hatcheries.

Master Fish Warden Hollister G. Van Dusen, in his recommendations to the State Board of Fish Commissioners, previous to the next session of the Legislature, will urge that the revenues devoted to hatchery work be doubled and, if possible, trebled, over the amount received during the past year.

Receipts from all sources for the year totaled approximately $12,000, and Mr. Van Dusen says that from $30,000 to $35,000 will be necessary.

There should be ten hatcheries on the Columbia and its tributaries, said the Fish Warden at the Imperial yesterday.

"Each plant should have a capacity for handling from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 eggs a year. At present there are but two hatcheries on the river, and the capacity of the woefully inadequate. The $12,000 available during the past year will be used in building new plants and experimental stations.

Henceforth it will be necessary to provide funds for their maintenance and for increasing the number until the requisite capacity is reached.

The men who make their living from the salmon industry should be willing to contribute to the work of its continuance. The necessity for hatchery work is urgent. It is the salvation of the business, and, unless the proper steps are taken, the river will be depleted and the fortunes invested in canneries and other plants will be lost. The licenses should be doubled or trebled, and the tax would not be excessive.

"I shall certainly urge that provisions be made by the Legislature for greater revenues to be made available for hatchery work. During the year past I have devoted considerable attention to propagating May and June fish, and several million fry will be turned out."

NOT IN DENTAL FIGHT.

Dr. George H. Chance Denies Any Connection With the Embroglio.

PORTLAND, Dec. 28.—(To the Editor.)—Through a very common mistake where names are similar, in the recent dental examination controversy, my name has been substituted for that of my son, although the name of Dr. Arthur W. Chance was correctly reported in the Oregonian of Sunday last, therefore, in the interest of truth, as well as for the benefit of the disputants, allow me to say that I have no connection whatever, directly or indirectly, with any dental college, dental examination board, dental supply house or dental clique, either in the City of Portland or the State of Oregon, nor have I turned any fee for the cooking of the recent dental broils and roasts so ably dished up to the hungry public's taste.

I may, however, in passing, be permitted to say, without either assailing or defending the State Dental Examining Board, that the better class of properly educated dentists, in treating diseases of the oral cavity, aim to work along the line of prevention rather than cure, always avoiding as far as possible the use of artificial substitutes to take the place of the natural dental organs, hence the necessity of the would-be educated up-to-date dental student acquiring a fuller and more accurate knowledge of what is known as organic and inorganic chemistry, than is absolutely necessary in the mechanical branch of the profession, which mainly consists in the substitution of the artificial for the natural, and which, though sometimes highly useful and even necessary in dental practice, has but little more to do with the science of tooth-saving dentistry than artificial limbs or glass eyes have to do with the science of other branches of the healing art.

AN APPEAL FOR HARMONY

LET EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYED UNDERSTAND EACH OTHER.

Secretary of Federated Trades Offers Sensible Suggestions for Beginning a New Year.

Turning over a new leaf involves such a wide range of thought that necessarily a letter on this line must be confined to a single idea. Being a laboring man, and having the cause of the workers next my heart, naturally I would treat of that very live question. From the point of view of one who works, and yet who concedes that "the enemy" has rights I am bound to respect, the turning over of a new leaf would seem to be best accomplished by getting better acquainted with each other. Employers should not take what they hear for truths, but should investigate for themselves. Employees, on the other hand, should not make too radical demands, for they take into consideration that selfishness pervades the one who has, as well as the one who would get.

Employers, it seems to me, make a very grave mistake when they stubbornly refuse to concede their employees the right to organize, for this puts the workman in a bad frame of mind toward his employer and, as a consequence, emptily exists where mutual interests demand the best of feeling. For, if the employer is the right kind of a man, his prosperity means the prosperity of his workman; and if the latter is of the right stuff, he works for the interest of a liberal employer.

Then again, when a man says workmen shall not organize, he lays himself open to the suspicion of being one who seeks to injure his workmen, for the object of organization among workers is to protect themselves from unjust treatment.

A fine illustration of this sort of thing occurred in a large establishment in Portland recently. A union of the employees of this concern was organized, and, instead of antagonizing it, the management recognized it as a good thing for all. On Christmas, the president of the union, on behalf of the members, presented the manager with a token of their esteem and good will, and were informed by him that as the year had been prosperous, the management had concluded to "declare a dividend" in favor of its faithful employees, and each one received a $5 gold piece. This is common sense, and shows far more than usual foresight on the part of this firm. How much better than a long, fierce struggle for the recognition of an inherent right.

Let us turn over a new leaf; let us get together. Let us talk over our differences in a reasonable frame of mind, and not in the spirit of men who are bound to have their own way, whatever happens. This life is made up of compromise, and the man who tries to have his own way absolutely will find his head in a very sore condition most of the time, be he capitalist or laborer.

The workmen, too, should turn over a new leaf in their respect. Envy, jealousy, back-biting and discord should give way entirely to brotherly love and a determination to pull together for the right. The cause of the weakest should be the cause of the strongest, for we are all fellow-tollers, after all, and a so-called "common" laborer is as important in his allotted sphere in life as the most skilled artisan. Let us get along in these things, now that the new year is upon us, and be we workman or employer, let us work together in harmony, seeking only that which is just, remembering that we are of equal importance to the great betterment of us all. In this way peace and prosperity will attend us, and our beautiful city will grow more beautiful as the years pass by.

Mr. Ankeny is chairman of the Washington Buffalo Exposition Commission, which will hold a meeting in Tacoma tomorrow to close up its affairs. Miss Lillie White left last night for San Francisco, where she intends to remain for the next two or three months, enjoying a complete rest. She overworked herself last Summer taking views up along the Columbia River, by no means an easy task, since it means many a hard climb with tripod and camera before a satisfactory position can be found. She was rewarded, however, by obtaining some superb views. When she comes back to Portland she will immediately return to her household Pyrocraft, and continue her efforts in this direction.
