

KING OF FORAGE CROPS

CLOVER EASILY THE BEST FOR THE WILLAMETTE VALLEY.

Dr. Withycombe Discusses the Subject at Farmers' Institute—Other Talks by Up-to-Date Men.

WALKER, Or., March 22.—The first farmers' institute ever held in this vicinity closed a very successful two days' meeting here last evening. After the call to order, George Walker was selected as chairman. Rev. W. J. Gardner gave the visitors a hearty welcome. Dr. James Withycombe responded, giving an idea of the scope and value of the Oregon Experiment Station, and stating some of the essential characteristics of an up-to-date, successful farmer.

Best Forage Crops.

Dr. James Withycombe discussed "Forage Crops," saying in part: "Of the forage plants for the Willamette Valley, clover is easily the king, with the vetch a close second. In some localities and under certain conditions, alfalfa is quite equal to clover. In many localities there is a prevailing opinion that clover cannot be grown, but when we consider that we have from 20 to 30 varieties of native clovers in Western Oregon, we see that this is a mistake.

"There are two general methods of sowing clover. "First—Sow on Fall wheat land, not later than March 15, at the rate of six to eight pounds per acre, and not later than April apply lin plaster at the rate of 50 to 60 pounds per acre, sown broadcast.

"Second—Plow the land in the Fall. In the Spring work up fine with a disc harrow, and sow the seed about May 1, without any associate grain crop. This is undoubtedly the best method to follow with our worn-out wheat lands.

"Some growers have secured excellent results by sowing rape with clover under this method—some six to eight pounds of clover and two to three pounds of rape seed per acre. In two months time, there will be produced an excellent pasture for sheep, hogs or calves. Should clover fall when thus sown, the field may be replowed in the Fall, and sown to vetch after a winter fallow. In the Fall, wheat, at the rate of 15 bushels per acre with one-half bushel of Fall wheat.

"Rape is a plant not so much appreciated as it should be, and many mistakes are made in its growing. For early feed, that is, May or June, it should be planted in drills, 2 1/2 or three feet apart, and intertilled the same as corn or potatoes. Sow the seed early in the Spring, at the rate of one to two pounds per acre. For later feed, sow about June, in a well-prepared seed bed. Sow broadcast at the rate of 2 1/2 to 3 pounds per acre and cover with a disc harrow. By August 1 a most excellent pasture will be secured, and will so continue until late in the Fall."

"Gardening at a Profit. M. M. Myers took up the topic, "General Gardening," speaking in part: "A quarter, or even half an acre, could very profitably be devoted to general gardening on most of our farms. During the year 1898 I sold from four acres $24 worth of garden vegetables. Last year, from the same area, I sold $45 worth of produce. From 30 square rods of ground I have sold onions to the value of $15. A common mistake in gardening is attempting to prepare the soil too early in the Spring, before it is in condition to work properly. Damage is thus often done which cannot be repaired during a whole season of planting. Seeds should be carefully tested before sowing. Get your seeds early and test early; then if they prove to be bad, others may be secured. Things may be made to take the place of irrigation, but the best method is frequent stirring of the surface soil with a rake has a marked effect on conserving moisture."

"Care of Manure and Its Value. Professor A. L. Kniesly discussed "Care of Barnyard Manures," in part, as follows: "How best to care for the manures produced on the farm is a subject little thought of, studied by the average farmer. In order to best understand the value of the manure from animals, I shall give the result of some carefully conducted experiments. The Geneva, N. Y., Experiment Station has given the following value of the waste material and analyzed all the waste material produced on a whole cow for a given period, with the following results: Value of solid matter per cow per day, 3 1/2 cents, or $1.14 per year; value of liquid manure per cow per day, 4 1/4 cents, or $1.58 per year; value of solid and liquid manure per cow per year, $2.72. The Cornell Experiment Station also conducted some very careful experiments, and found that the average of a certain number of cows was that the value of the solid and liquid manure per cow per day was 10 2/3 cents, or $3.86 per year; value of the manure produced by one horse per day was 7 1/2 cents, or $2.73 per year.

"These values are given to the manure in this way: The manure contains certain amount of plant food. Now, if we went into the markets of the world and bought the same amounts of plant food, say as nitrate of soda, nitrate of potash and superphosphate, they would cost the above values which have been given to the manures. Ordinarily we may say that a ton of good average manure will contain 30 pounds of nitrogen, 5 pounds of phosphoric acid and 30 pounds of potash.

"Cows fed on clover produce manure worth $4.17 per ton. The average of many analyses showed: Cow manure, worth $2.42 per ton; horse manure, $3.30 per ton. Since manures are so valuable, how shall we care for them? If the manure heap is too dry it becomes "fire-fanged" and much of the nitrogen is lost as ammonia gas. On the other hand, if the heap is very moist, the ammonia combines with the carbon dioxide and forms ammonium carbonate. Ammonia nitrate may also be formed and preserved in the manure pile. If the manure is left exposed to the winter rains and especially under the eaves of the barn, much of its value is lost by leaching. Experiments show that the losses average from 20 to 50 per cent. Many times certain substances are used about the stalls and on the manure heap for the purposes of preventing losses by leaching. Lime and wood ashes on the manure, as these two substances will drive off all the ammonia present in the heap and cause a serious loss of nitrogen.

"Where practical, it is advisable to haul manure to the field from week to week. If it must accumulate all winter, it is best to keep it sheltered and moist enough so that it will not become "fire-fanged." It is a good plan to house it under a large shed where cattle are allowed to run for a few minutes each day. The manure should be spread over the whole area under the shed, so that the cattle can tramp it thoroughly. If manure is handled in this way, and if it is kept very moist, it will be found that the losses due to leaching and to the formation of volatile gases will be very small."

"Propagation of Vetch. "Propagation and Use of the Vetch" was the topic presented by Alva Bement. Among other things, he said: "My first experience with vetch was in sowing it on heavy fern land. By the second year, the fern had practically disappeared. My next sowing was on an old wheat field that had been badly tramped, some of which was so lumpy that I used a heavy wooden maul to

NATIONAL LEAGUE MAGNATES TO MEET TUESDAY.

Schedule Will Be Arranged and Other Business Matters Attended To—Other Sporting News.

CLEVELAND, O., March 22.—A meeting of the National League Baseball magnates will be held at the Fifth-Avenue Hotel, New York, Tuesday evening, April 1, to arrange a schedule for the coming season, and to discuss other business matters. C. H. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn Club, was elected with Frank de Haas Robinson, of the St. Louis Club, for several hours here today, during which conferences were held with James A. Hart, of Chicago, and A. H. Soden, of Boston, by long-distance telephone.

Later today Mr. Robinson stated that it had been decided to call a meeting at the time and place above named. Mr. Robinson added that the matter of the league presidency would not be discussed at the meeting, unless a decision should be rendered by the courts in connection with the pending litigation previous to April 1. "As a result of today's conference with Messrs. Ebbetts, Soden and Hart," continued Mr. Robinson, "I find that all differences will be laid aside, and that we shall from now on work in harmony."

"The Hand Separator. Professor F. L. Kent discussed "The Hand Separator," explaining the principles on which these machines are constructed, and showing the saving effected by their use over the older methods of separating cream from milk. Attention was called to the fact that the so-called "imitation," "ersatz," or "automatic" separator is not properly entitled to be called a separator at all.

Hon. G. W. Chastle delivered a very able address on "Education for American Children," making an especially strong plea for a higher standard of young manhood.

"The necessity for some form of local co-operation was touched upon in several instances, and at the close of the meeting a resolution was passed appointing a committee to investigate the matter of forming some sort of a farmers' organization. The members of the committee followed: J. W. Walker, John Hostetter, G. O. Walker, Rev. W. J. Gardner, Alva Bement, Charles Jackson and A. H. LaJolie.

How many mothers realize that when the baby's advent is expected they need strength for two instead of one. Women, weak, nervous, just able to drag around, find themselves confronted with coming maternity. They have not strength enough for themselves, how can they have strength to give a child? We don't look for the birth of strong ideas from a weak mind. Why should we expect the birth of strong children from weak mothers? The way to ensure health and strength to mother and child is to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a preparative for motherhood. It brings the mother's strength up to the requirements of nature, so that she has strength to give her child. It nourishes the nerves and so quiets them. It encourages a natural appetite and induces refreshing sleep. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

"I wish to thank the great benefit my wife derived through taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mr. Robert Harden of Brandon, Manitoba, Box 66. "It was when her baby came. We had heard so much of your medicine that my wife decided to try it. I may say my wife's age was thirty-three and this was her first child. She commenced to take 'Favorite Prescription' five months before her child was born. We have a fine healthy baby and we believe that this was mainly owing to the 'Favorite Prescription' taken faithfully according to directions. We shall certainly recommend it wherever we can."
