CLUB WOMEN BUSY

National Congress Makes a Record as to Sessions.

DELEGATES IN PULPITS TODAY

President Benjamin Ide Makes a Strong Speech for Co-Education
—Two Tight Knots Must be Untied Monday.

Plans for reorganization of the Women's Club Congress promise to precipitate a lively discussion on re-convention Monday. A well-known parliamentarian raises the point that a rule allowing representation to state federations only will be illegal. The report on the new charter will present another hard problem to solve. The color question has not yet come up.

FEDERAL BUILDING, LOS ANGELES, CAL., May 3.—Notwithstanding the rush and fatigue of La Fiesta yesterday, the delegates to the Women's Club Congress were in their places promptly at 9:30, when President Lowe called the convention to order. This has been a busy day, beginning with an able paper on "Advantages of Co-Education," by Mrs. Mabel Clare Craft, editor of the Sunday Chronicle, San Francisco, in which she answered to the satisfaction of her audience all the old objections to the new system of education. She held that the thorough education of women means more than all other reforms.

Mrs. Linda Hull Larned, president of the National Household Economics Association, followed with an able paper on "Household Economics a Pertinent Factor of Education." This paper was discussed by Mrs. Neville, of Wisconsin. President Wheeler, of the State University of California, was introduced, and made what many of his friends believe was the greatest, most manly speech of his life. He declared himself as heartily in favor of coeducation, as 1100 women graduates of the State University of California will testify. Said he: "If coeducational institutions have done nothing else, they have done well in killing off the old-fashioned female seminary, and I am sorry women send their daughters to 'finishing' schools. That kind of a thing ought not to be called education. Nothing should be called education that does not make character. Coeducational institutions are part of the training of life, where questions are treated as in the home and society." His closing remarks were to the effect that "this century is for the American woman; she must take it and lift it out of the dangers of sordidness. The educated women of America are the best gift of America to the world." He was greeted by a great storm of applause as he took his seat.

Mrs. Lowe then made one of her characteristic speeches, in which, with peculiar tact and grace, she expressed for the convention its thanks and appreciation of such brotherly, helpful words.

Mrs. Florence Kelly, of New York City, chairman of the industrial committee, was introduced and took charge of this part of the programme. Miss Jane Addams, of Hull House fame, was most cordially greeted as the next speaker, taking as her topic, "The Social Waste of Child Labor," which she treated in a most earnest manner.

The "Club Movement Among Working Women" was discussed by Mrs. Jean Hamilton, of New York, of the Consumers' League, and Mrs. Elmer E. Jones, of Salt Lake.

"How to Build a Clubhouse" was discussed by various clubwomen, all giving facts and figures that were of great encouragement to all who aspire to own their own club home, and especially the Portland delegation, which feels that something must be done in order that its growing club may have suitable accommodations, in view of the coming centennial.

The period allotted to the press committee was full of interest, and was occupied by Mrs. Hagan, of the Atlanta Constitution; Mrs. Erekline, Mrs. Margaret Collier Graham, Mary Howard Kinkaid and Rowena Hewitt London, all women of national reputation.

The Northwest delegates were pleased to note that the Pacific Coast was not forgotten when the roll of honored journalists was enumerated. The Oregonian and its editor, H. W. Scott, and also the name of Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway were greeted with hearty applause.

Tonight was educational night. Mrs. May Alden Ward acted as chairman.

Nothing new has developed in regard to the presidential question. The nominating committee has been elected, consisting of one delegate from each state. Mrs. E. M. Elwood represents Washington.

Tomorrow will be welcomed as a day of rest. The opportunity will be given of hearing some representative speakers.

Rev. Robert McIntyre, of National fame, preaches in Pasadena, and Rev. Robert J. Burdette in the Baptist Church here.

In the evening Mrs. Burdette will give an address in the Methodist Church.

The Northwestern delegates are all well, and renewing their youth and strength in this land of sunshine and flowers.

MARIA L. TRENHOLM HIDDEN.

STORY OF THE CONVENTION.
Mrs. Robert Burdette Withdraws From Race for President.
LOS ANGELES, May 3.—After seven sessions today, the club women are prepared for a recess—next on Sunday, for many are going on an excursion to Mount Lowe, dissenting voters notwithstanding. There is also to be a garden party in honor of the visiting press women, which some of the club women have given up, but which promises to be a large and representative gathering of writers. To offset this frivolity, however, several pulbits will be occupied by delegates. At the First Presbyterian Church, Mrs. May Alden Ward is to speak on "Voices of Today," while at the First Methodist Church the general theme of "The Modern Individual" will be presented by Mrs. Robert Burdette, of Pasadena, prospective first vice-president; Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, of New York, first of the International Sunshine Society, and Mrs. Florence Kelley, of New York, promoter of the Consumers' League.

There are two tight knots that will have to be untied by the convention, Monday morning, when the committee on reorganization reports. A well-known parliamentarian, Mrs. Urquhart Lee, who supports the individual club, points out that the plan providing only for the representation of state federations will be illegal. "Under the guise of amendment," said Mrs. Lee, "you cannot rob members of their organization of their vested rights. In this case, it would not be simple readjustment, as some say, and the many clubs which are members of the general federation, but not of the state would, by the proposed amendment, be thrown out." This is the point Mrs. Lee will raise Monday. Printed slips seem to have been distributed among the delegates.

Mrs. Jean Hamilton, of Washington, who was appointed at the last biennial to secure a new charter from Congress, will report. It was believed that this convention would be able to add under the new charter, which has been secured, but it has been ascertained that even if the convention approves it, it will be necessary for the 50 incorporators, or at least a majority of them, to travel to Washington from various parts of the country to hold a meeting and vote the rest of the body in. Not until this is done will the new charter be legally accepted.

The literature session is always a star affair, and the one which came off this evening under Mrs. May Alden Ward, of Boston, was no exception. The entertainers were Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick, of Boston, the Shakespearean reader; Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd, of Amherst, Mass., the writer and wife of the astronomer, and Mrs. John Fox, Jr., of Kentucky, of "Hell for Sartre" fame.

Banner Day for Sessions.

Today was a record-breaker as to sessions. At the Simpson Auditorium, Mrs. Margaret Evans presided over the education session, the speakers being Benjamin A. Wheeler, Mrs. Lina Larned, of Syracuse, N. Y., president of the National Household Economics Association, and Miss Mabel Clare Craft, Sunday editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, who spoke on "Advantages of Co-Education."

Mrs. Larned's paper on "Household Economics a Pertinent Factor in Education," was discussed by Mrs. Arthur C. Neville, of Green Bay, Wis.

The report of the committee on education was presented by Mrs. Ellen C. Baldwin, president of the Milwaukee Downer College.

This was followed by an industrial session, with Mrs. Florence Kelley, of New York, as chairman. The chief speaker, Miss Jane Adams, of Hull House, Chicago, discussed "The Social Waste of Child Labor," printed slips being distributed covering phases of the subject.

Miss Adams made a plea for uniformity of child labor laws in the states, and suggested this as an admirable work for club women to undertake.

Miss Jean Hamilton, of Oswego, N. Y., presented the "Club Movement Among Working Women," and Mrs. Elmer Jones, of Salt Lake, spoke of "The Consumers' League in Utah."

The reciprocity bureau idea was probably the most practical feature of the four afternoon sessions. It was explained by Mrs. Phillip Moore, chairman of the reciprocity session. Mrs. Moore was appointed by the National Board to head a committee which should devise some means of centralizing the various reciprocal committees, and this conference was for that purpose.

The first art session under Mrs. Ellen Tiffany Brockway, of Brooklyn, followed with Mrs. Herman E. Hall, of Chicago, president of the women of the American Art and Outdoor Art Association, as a speaker on "Outdoor Improvement for Home and School." In this connection, it is interesting to know she has a photograph exhibit at the Westchester Hotel, showing what has been done along these lines. Dr. Yarnell Kim, an educated Chinese woman, of San Francisco, attracted much attention, not only because of her personality, but her paper on "Glass Mosaics."

Other speakers included Mrs. Alonso Chapin, of Pasadena; Mrs. Julia Van Kirk Tilka, of Chicago; and Mrs. Katherine Ball, of San Francisco.

Clubhouse Session.
Simultaneously at the other Auditorium, Mrs. Jean Hamilton presided over a clubhouse session, the first ever presented at a biennial. The women representing clubs which have buildings of their own and who spoke were: Mrs. Joseph Barr, of Los Angeles; Mrs. James Sidney Peck, of Milwaukee; Miss Helen Murphy, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Sarah D. Easton, of Peoria, Ill.; and Mrs. Albert Stoussart, of Baltimore. These came at the Westchester Hotel, showing what has been done along these lines. Dr. Yarnell Kim, an educated Chinese woman, of San Francisco, attracted much attention, not only because of her personality, but her paper on "Glass Mosaics."

Mrs. Sarah Hagan, of Atlanta, on "The Women's Necessary to the Newspaper Business"; Mrs. Margaret Collier Graham, of California, on "Vogue of the Illustrated Novel"; Emma Payne Erskine, of Wisconsin, on "The Moral Influence of the Novel"; Mrs. Holland Kinkaid, on "Some Humorous Aspects of Newspaper Life"; and Rowena Hewitt London, on "The Press—Our American Type."

The credentials committee is able to make an optimistic report of the number of delegates, the number to date being 1250, with more to be heard from. One of the farthest states, Massachusetts, leads with 25, but as yet no word from Maine. Mrs. Hagan gathered the forces for the final fight on the color question and reorganization.

The strain has been removed from the presidential election by the withdrawal of Mrs. Robert J. Burdette from the presidential race. In a letter which she issued to the press, she gave her support to Mrs. Denison, so that the ticket, unless a dark horse appears, promises to stand: Mrs. Denison, president; Mrs. Burdette, first vice-president; and Mrs. Buckwalter, second vice-president.

A Sensational Suicide.
CHICAGO, May 3.—Thomas Gregor, a real estate broker, committed suicide today in a sensational manner. He was one of a crowd at the Wrightwood avenue station. When the train approached he jumped from the platform and fell onto the tracks. By a desperate effort the motorcar succeeded in stopping the train. Gregor was hoisted back to the platform, but he was so badly injured that he died within a few minutes. No cause for the act is known.

Death Rather Than Charity.
NEW YORK, May 3.—In the Sleepy Hollow cemetery, on the graves of her father and mother, and not far from the tomb of Washington Irving, whom she had known in her youth, and whose works had always fascinated her, Miss Maria Hoffman, 90 years of age, has ended her existence with morphine. Miss Hoffman's mother belonged to an old Southern family. Her means had gradually dwindled away, and she ended her life rather than seek aid from friends.

FRANCE ACCEPTED

Invitation to Take Part in Rochambeau Ceremony.

LOUBET WRITES TO ROOSEVELT

French President Receives the Mission at Paris Previous to Its Departure for the United States.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Ambassador Cambon presented to President Roosevelt today a personal letter from President Loubet of France. It is a reply to a letter written by President Roosevelt to the President of the French Republic, inviting France to take part in the Rochambeau centennial exercises.

"I gladly accept the invitation in the name of the government of the republic and in that of the entire French people, in fraternal taking part in this solemn commemorative occasion."

Pelee Volcano Active.
ST. THOMAS, D. W. I., May 3.—Advices from the island of Martinique announce that the volcano on Mount Pelee has been alarmingly active in the last week. The town of St. Pierre was covered with ashes to the depth of a quarter of an inch, and great consternation prevails.

Excitement in Portugal.
MADRID, May 3.—Advices from the Portuguese frontier indicate that the situation in Portugal is becoming extremely grave in consequence of the excitement caused by the bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies, approving the calling of a convention of Portugal's creditors for the purpose of converting the foreign debt. Members of the Portuguese army and Navy are joining in the popular protest. All telegrams from Portugal are censored.

OLYMPIAN GAMES.
Big Plans of the Chicago Commission.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Messrs. Henry J. Furber and Benjamin J. Rosenthal, of the Olympian Games Commission, have returned to Chicago, after a visit to Washington, made for the purpose of discussing the games with President Roosevelt and other prominent Government officials. Both are deeply pleased with the cordial interest with which the President attended for nearly an hour to their presentation of the plans for the contest. In regard to an appropriation of $500,000 from Congress, Mr. Furber last night said:

"We are advised by certain members that the Olympian games may readily be rendered so important as to make it incumbent upon Congress to make a liberal appropriation. It is, however, their opinion that it is too late to accomplish anything this season, but that if the merits of the general enterprise are properly brought to the attention of the public within the next few months, Congress, supported by the popular interest which the games should arouse, may at its next meeting be readily induced to make the necessary appropriation."

Continuing, Mr. Furber said:

"We return with the feeling that the military and naval features of our programme may be rendered most important. It is hoped that we may secure the attendance of contingents of the National Guard from different states and also from the regular Army. It is not improbable that an effort may be made to secure the presence of troops from foreign nations to compete with ours in military drills and athletics."

"To Congressman Foss, chairman of the House committee on naval affairs, we are indebted for a valuable suggestion. He informs us that there are many vessels belonging to our Navy which could be brought into the Great Lakes without difficulty. Among these may be mentioned the Hartford, Admiral Farragut's old flagship; the Gloucester, which engaged the Spanish torpedo boats off Santiago, and enough sailors to make an impressive naval pageant. The presence of warships on the lakes is of course governed by treaties with Great Britain and Canada, but for an amicable purpose such as this, especially as it may not be impossible to secure the presence also of ships from foreign navies, it is thought that England and Canada would be glad to lend their approval to the plan."

"The importance of Congressman Foss' action extends beyond the games of 1904. There is no city in the lake region which has not a profound interest in developing foreign commerce by the way of the Great Lakes. Anything that facilitates the accessibility of our lake ports from the ocean or accentuates the existence of facilities we already possess will bring our lake ports to the attention of foreign nations as available points of entry. The fact that a naval fleet, especially if composed in part of ships from foreign countries, can reach Chicago by traversing our lakes, would, it is believed, be an effective means of influencing foreign nations that for purposes of commerce, our lake cities are practically open ports. If this plan shall be developed, as is expected, it is proposed that the fleet will congregate at some Canadian port in Lake Huron and visit the principal ports of Lakes Erie, Huron and Michigan on the way to Chicago."

Made Counterfeits in Prison.
