SAVAGE GOES FREE

Jury Acquits Him of $10,000

VERDICT RECEIVED WITH JOY

Given by Kelly Wiley, an Accomplice in the Crime, and True Johnson, an Accessory.

Charles Savage, charged with larceny of $10,000 worth of diamonds in the Portland Hotel, November 17, 1901, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Frazer's department at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The de-liberations of the jury occupied two hours. The verdict was received with joy by Savage and his companion, Frankie Thomas, and several friends of the defendant, who were present in the court-room, gave vent to their feelings with exclamations of approval, and were re strained from making any demonstration by the balliff. Savage thanked and shook hands with each member of the jury, and Frankle Thomas expressed her gratitude to a number of the jurors.

Savage was immediately discharged from custody, but Frankle Thomas is still held on a charge of receiving the stolen goods. She was originally jointly charged with Savage, but that indictment against her was dismissed several days ago, and the other charge filed. The case against her will, however, probably be d'amissed, as having failed to convict the man the attorneys for the prosecution cannot hope to convict the woman.

The only diamonds recovered were those obtained from True Johnson, amounting to about $2000 or less. No trace what-ever has been secured concerning the rest of the diamonds, and the evidence at the trial was that the officers do not know where they are. True Johnson will doubtless be given her liberty as a reward for testifying for the state, and the only person punished is Kelly Wiley, who pleaded guilty because there were several burglary charges pending against him on which he could have been convicted and imprisoned. Wiley testified that at the trial in consideration of his plea of guilty he was let off with a five years' sentence, and the burglary charges were dropped. He said he never got any of the diamonds, but stated that he loafed on the outside of the hotel while Sav-age entered the place, and that when Savage came out he showed him dian in plush boxes, and afterwards at his house. He stated further that Savage informed him that he divided the plunder with another man, but did not say who he man was. True Johnson testified that she received diamonds from Savage and Mrs. Thomas, and took part of them to Omaha, where she was arrested. Other diamonds, she said, she left in her room, and gave a key to the room to a friend named Colline, and took the only other fley to the room with her. There was nine evidence that there was a white man at True Johnson's house on the night of the robpery, but he was never located by the

The only positive evidence against Say. age was that of Kelly Wiley, an accomplice, and True Johnson, an accessory. In law the testimony of an accomplice uncor-roborated is not sufficient to sustain a conviction. No diamonds were found on conviction. No diamonds were found on Savage or Frankle Thomas, nor was it shown that they disposed of any.

John Manning, Deputy District Attorney, who conducted the case in conjunction with A. C. Spencer, was disgusted with the outcome of the two trials. He remarked after hearing the verdict: "It's no use trying to convict anybody in Multnomah County," and then added as an afterthought, "with such juries as we get."

ENGLAND'S LATE SUMMER

Rain, Snow and Hail Put a Damper

on All Festivities.

LONDON, May 17.—So far as it has progressed in London, rain, snow and hall progressed in London, rain, snow and half have been England's harbingers of Sum-mer. Never has there been such an in-clement Spring. Americans who have come over for the coronation sit around in doleful groups, waiting for the sunshine opera and clubs in furs, and the men have long since reverted to their Winter clothes, so prematurely discarded in sunny

April. No amount of festivities, and there are plenty of them, can dispel the universal gloom that the awful weather has created. In the northern part of the country there was actually skating this week, while an automobile trip to Scot-land has been bandoned. London itself has been spared this last visitation, but cold northeast winds and perpetual rain fully brought the unsavory weather rec-ord of the metropolis up to that of the provinces today, when it became slightly better and warmer.

Among the Americans who will have a good view of the coronation is Lady Charles Wolseley's 18-year-old son, Eric, Lord Wolseley, who will be close to the sovereign throughout the ceremony, has selected Eric to act as his page. Lady Wolseley was Miss Anna Murphy, of San Women go to the tion upon the giri for appendicitis. Sing was a handsome young woman of 20, and had formerly attended the University of Idaho at Moscow. Her infatuation for Ledbrock was not dreamed of by her Dr. Ledbrock's letter to E. M. Gillette, a Triend, was as follows:

"Oro Fino, Idaho, May II, 1992.—My Very Dear Friend: You have promised always to love me. Please do. We have under-to love me. Please do. We have under-stood each other and do yet; this explains what I meant when I said that some day you would understand all. Do not get angry, but please remember us in love, It may seem idle nonsense to write about Winnie and myself loving each other so that to live pure, acceptable lives would have been impossible; but such are the facts. Rather than bring shame upon you, the church, and my home we each you, the church, and my home, we each for ourselves choose death. Our love for each other is stronger than death. This is the only gate friendly to us through which we can be together always. It costs us a great many tears to rend so many hearts, but to explain is useless; we would by Both. not be believed.

"Some will pity us, and still love us; others will think of us as heartless and vile sinners. But we die as we have lived, believing in the love of God as it is in Jesus Christ. We die thinking of you all and expect that you will all love us, and not say unkind things about us. We are sorry that such tragedy should enter your life as well as ours. We would that it were otherwise.

"Poor Mrs. Booth! I know it will almost kill her. She knows all about us, and we will always sleep knowing that one heart understands us.

"Please do not leave our cold bodies in Moscow. Take us both to Spokane or Portland. See my poor wife, and comfort her. Talk things over with her and then quietly lay us away.

same grave or side by side, on the same day. If you sing, let it be 'Abide With Me' and 'I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say,' etc. If anything is said let it be from the words in Mark, 'All manner of sin,' etc., 'shall be forgiven.' Let Rev. Le Crone conduct the services.

"We are still alive and are together for-ever; do not think of us as dead. We are rational and choose rather to die than sin; we are not cowards—it cost us much thus to die. Forgive us, please, and lay us away together, please. Your friend, "J. F. L."

The girl's letter was brief and without a date line. It read:
"Mr. Gillett: Will you please read this letter and then take it up to papa and tell him? Be sure and take it up as soon as you get it, so papa can come down on the afternoon train after us. He will need some one to come with him, and, as be thinks so much of you, please come if you can. It will be such a shock to him.

"Please do not think harshiy about us. We prefer to go this way than to have people talk ill about us. I know you are our friend. A long, long, good-by, "WINNIFRED BOOTH." The two letters were in the same envelope, a small note envelope, which was addressed in Miss Booth's handwriting. The letter was posted at 7 o'clock Monday morning, although Dr. Ledbrock's letter bears date of the previous day. On the stand of the room was a piece of paper on which had been written in a feminine hand: "To the Proprietor, Hotel Noble: We have notified our folks in Moscow that they will find us here, and unless the letters miscarry they will be here on the afternoon train. We have also sent for an undertaker from Moscow. Expect them on the train tomorrow. They will take charge of our bodies. Please remember the last song that we sung last

No sinner so great that He will not take him, No, not one; no, not one.

Jesus knows all about our struggles;
He will guide till the day is done;
There's not a friend like the lowly Jest

On the stand of the room were a number of torn scraps of paper, on which Miss Booth had evidently written to Mrs. Ledbrock. These torn scraps were gathered together by Mr. Gillette and sent to Mrs. Ledbrock, no attempt having been made to piece them together before sealing them up.

TRAINS AT COURT. Restored at Future Functions by the King's Order.

LONDON, May 17 .- At the third court of the King and Queen of England, held reason of which she was unable to resist at Buckingham Palace, owing to the recent order concerning the dresses to be feared him is now common, and more than one young woman has been found who says that Miss Booth had expressed worn at court, only the ladies presented and those who presented them wore court trains. The unique spectacle was witnessed of many ladies making their bows to their majestles clad in dresses only a shade more gorgeous than ball gowns. The question as to whether or not girl friend, that she disliked and feared Dr. Ledbroek, and told other girl friends that while she was in the hospital recovtrains should be worn at court has caused great excitement in society restoration of trains at all future courts, which has been ordered, is a great tri-umph for the fashionable dressmakers of London, who brought such pressure to bear at court through influential customers that His Majesty yielded in the mat-ter and countermanded his first order brock had objected as an associate, urging her parents to forbid him the house; This letter he had shown her, and demanded abolishing trains. But he permitted those ladies who had not had time to procure trains for last night's function to attend in gowns without this feature.

The court was the best attended and Winnifred told the same story to her mother, and ended with the remark, "And I let the old fool work me, and wrote the letter." Mrs. Booth, having complete confidence in Ledbrock, supposed that his fidence in Ledbroek, supposed that his endeavor to induce Winnie to break off social relations with the young man were ter, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, and Mrs. John R. In the general circle Mrs. Choate pre-sented Mrs. Foxhall Keene, Miss Louise caused by the great fatherly interest he took in her welfare, of which he fre-quently spoke to her parents. Chandler, of New York; Mrs. Frank Avery, of Chicago; Mrs. Blow, of Denbrief, that the couple left Moscow and went together to Oro Fino Saturday, May ver, and Mrs. Newhouse, of New York.

Among the Americans who attended court and who had previously been pre-10. They spent the night at the hotel. Sunday evening they attended the Ep-worth League meeting and then retired to sented were Mrs. John Hays Hammond and Mrs. J. W. Mackay. Mrs. Mackay the hotel. They did not appear for break-fust in the morning, and at noon, when the door of their room was opened, the girl was found dead on the bed. Booth family.

The prominence of the couple and the fact that no intimate relations were suspected has caused a profound sensation in Moscow, where the girl has been raised and where Dr. Ledbrock had practiced his profession for six months. He was formerly a clergyman, and at various times during the past Winter had occupied pulpits in Moscow. He was a well-read man and a psychological student. He was an intimate friend of Rev. Booth, and about four months ago he performed an opera-
