

SUMMER SEASON OPENS AT THE SHORE OF THE SOUNDING SEA

Despite the rain of the early part of the week, life at the beaches was gladdened by the sunshine and clear sky that followed. The past week has seen the beginning of the active season. Excellent weather and the opening of the 4th has brought on the rush. With these obstacles to the hotel-keepers removed, suitable weather conditions will make the present season the best on record. Accommodations are better than ever before, and the steamboat and railroad lines are offering good service to their patrons.

AT CLATSOP BEACH.

Good Outlook for a Busy Season at the Oregon Resorts.

The Astoria & Columbia River Railroad's fast schedule between Portland and South Beach is bringing that beach into more and more prominence. This is best exemplified by the extensive improvements, both those centered about the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad's stations and those undertaken by private individuals. The South Beach enjoys all the advantages necessary to a popular summer resort—fishing, both deep sea and river; climbing, sunbathing, swimming, etc. since its only drawback, its former years, its inaccessibility, has been removed, the proprietors of the various houses and hotels may look forward to a good season.

At Seaside, the city itself has taken matters in hand, for the accommodation of guests. The roadways for several miles have been improved with a sawdust coating, with not half the accompanying agitation that follows such a movement in Portland. Sidewalks diverging in every direction from the center of the town have been built, and everything that adds to the beauty of the city has been done. New cottages, built principally by Portland people, have sprung up during the winter and spring, especially along the railroad bridge street, which is destined to be the Fifth avenue of Seaside. One of the latest investments is that of a swimming tank, 75 feet long, 30 wide and varying from four to 12 feet in depth, to be filled with fresh water. It contains 50 dressing-rooms, and about 10 shower baths supplied with salt water pipes. It is now in progress of construction, and is situated a little south of the new Butterfield cottage.

In course of construction, also, is a water merry-go-round. Four or five boats are to be floated on a circular tank about five feet deep; each is rigged with a sail, which is to be the sole motive power of the apparatus. It is situated in an advantageous place at the end of the shell road, overlooking the beach, and will be a great source of amusement to children.

The new Grimes Hotel, under the experienced management of Mr. Grimes, who caters to the taste of his guests as well as to their sense of the beautiful, expects that share of the summer trade which naturally falls to the lot of a well-appointed house.

On the veranda of the Locketty Hall, protected from the violent sea breeze by the high ridge, one may see the summer months in dreamy forestfulness of everything but his board bill. Mrs. Carlyle has paid special attention to the fittings and furnishings of her house. Everything is homelike and her house is to be one of the centers of social life at Seaside.

The Seaside Hotel, under the management of Miss Stryker, will open July 15, and will enjoy its old popularity.

The Gearhart Park Hotel, situated two miles north of Seaside, has been visited with numerous improvements. Paint has been scattered freely, and the board walk from the station to the hotel has been repaired, giving one a sense of straggle security that has been wanting heretofore. The hotel will open July 15.

Hotel Flavel, under the management of Mr. Mitchell, one of the best-equipped houses on the Pacific Coast, opened July 1. It has the advantage of approach both by land and sea, and Mr. Mitchell gives assurance that improvements even over last year's will disprove his opinion.

NORTH BEACH.

Season Has Opened With a Rush on the Washington Side.

All along North Beach are the same evidences of summer activity. Train agents are busy, butcher-hops are learning names of cottages, and worried-looking cottagers are comparing luggage checks with the avidity of subparties. The beach is divided again into two centers of population into two parts: the first part, Ocean Park, and its immediate surroundings; the second, Long Beach, comprising Long Beach Station, Centerville, Seaview, and Tioga. These are some six miles apart, with the Breakers occupying a midway position. Between the two there is great rivalry and contention. Many improvements have been made and accommodations are better than ever. There are evidences of the paint brush, while the smiling face of the proprietor portends anything but an unfavorable summer. If anyone disbelieves that claims and tide wait for no man he should spend a week at the beach. The Long Beach people already feel the heat of the summer, and every new arrival shows his interest by visiting the charred ruins. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were truly ideal days on the beach, days on which the sun shined brightly, the wind blew against a log that had crossed the seas, and look across the ocean to where it met the cloudless sky. He who was lucky enough to be at the coast on Monday, in the evening, saw the setting of a new moon.

Site for De Terney Monument.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—Dr. H. H. Kane, president of the Cercle Litteraire Franco-Americaine of New York, and other representative Frenchmen arrived here recently to locate the site of a proposed monument in honor of Admiral De Terney, who commanded the French allies which came to this country during the American Revolution. A site was selected in the harbor park or esplanade where was formerly an old pier on which the French landed in 1781, and here a triangular stone with the date July 11, 1781, was placed in position and upon this the monument will be erected. The stone was taken from a granite quarry on the estate of Lorillard Spencer, from which the stone for the old pier and the old fort built during the Revolution was taken. The exercises consisted of addresses by Mayor Boyle, Lieutenant-Governor Shepley, John Austin Stevens and Rev. H. H. Faure, a French Protestant clergyman from Paris. Prayer by Rev. William B. Meenan, of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church of this city, closed the exercises.
